

HARD WORK AND LONG HOURS HELP

The editors of NEW HORIZONS, Ron Recher and Hedy Schrof

Standing, left to right: B. Bernhard, S. Skirving, J. Gaudin, P. Chase, N. Brown, B. McKinley, N. Anderson, J. Aufdermarsh, R. Spiess, C. Porter. Seated: J. Paxton; N. Leonhart and R. Kersh, Assistant Editors, J. Hooser G. Rentschler, P. Boehringer

This year's annual staff was chosen in a different way. At the end of their junior year, students signed up for annual. Then Miss Keck, the Annual Adviser, with the help of English and business teachers, picked the staff.

Planning the Annual was also executed in a new way. During the summer, the editors, and Miss Keck, met with a representative from the printing company. For one week, ideas were exchanged and plans were drawn. Almost every page of the Annual was sketched, allowing space for pictures and copy. This saved the staff much hard work in making a dummy. But it still provided the students a chance to make use of their own originality in planning pictures and copy.