

POLLY JEAN LYND

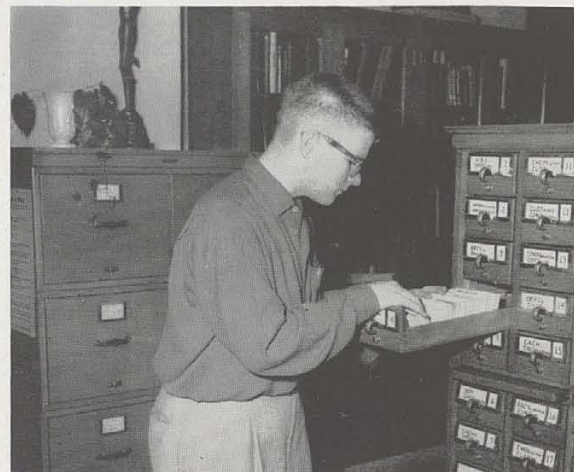

MATILDA E. PENNINGTON

Student studying in Jordan Library.

EVER INCREASING KNOWLEDGE OBTAINED FROM LIBRARY

The Jordan Memorial Library is one of the largest Public High School libraries in the city. It is set apart from other libraries by its unique stained glass windows. Staffed by two librarians and a student group, it contains a complete set of the books, catalogues, records, and files that Hughes students require.

Tom Turner searching for "Someone to Love."

A familiar sight in the halls before school and at lunch are students camped on the window sills throughout our fair school. They are partaking in the growth of mind, more commonly known as, reading. How they can concentrate and ignore the ever present morning din is still a secret to us.

An early comer, George Mitchell, claims squatters rights.

