

Junior high students benefit from individual instruction by Mr. Curtis.

Beginners' Band

Hailing from Boston, Massachusetts, is Mr. Curtis, the band director, in his first year at Hughes. Experience is the word with Mr. Curtis in Cincinnati schools. Last year, spent at Shroder Junior High School, and several years at New Woodward are among his past teachings. Out of Ohio, he has taught at the Baltimore, Maryland City College, which is a high school for boys, in North Carolina, and in Shenandoah, Virginia. The Conservatory of Music was graced with the presence of Mr. Curtis as a member of the faculty for several years in the afternoons and evenings.

The Hughestown beat is kept in time with the help of the junior high band, under the baton of Mr. Curtis. Meeting the second period of every day, the band is made up of various players from beginners to those with some experience. The main purpose of the junior high band is to mold a group of new students into an experienced band. The junior high pep sessions and assemblies are the present objectives of the band, and higher hopes are held for the future. Old uniforms of the senior band were donated to the junior high band, and the future looks bright that a "Little Red" band may soon be ready to go.
