

With Nettie Smith officiating, Judy Rolfert, Emillie Moeller and Joyce Wilkerson await the tip-off between Lea Kalejs and Sandy Hughes.

Basketball

The jump, and the game was under way. All eyes followed the ball. Grab that rebound! Guard your man! And suddenly, swoosh! the scorekeeper marked two more points. Led by sports leader, Sandy Hughes, girls practiced on Mondays and Thursdays for the playdays, which were held at Walnut Hills and Withrow High Schools. Miss Mary Busser and Mrs. Diane Zeigler supervised the girls as they practiced dribbling and foul shooting. The annual "Battle of the Sexes" game was interesting to watch as the Hughes girls exhibited their skills against the Varsity Big Reds.

Modern Dance

On Wednesdays after school soft melodious music could be heard floating from the gym to all parts of the school. This phenomenon was caused by a group of girls doing modern dancing. Modern dancing was held throughout the year. About thirty girls came out for this sport. They improvised their own dance numbers both individually and in groups. Dance techniques were perfected under the supervision of Mrs. Ziegler and sportsleader Doris Jackson. Some of the records were bought with the dues and others were bought by the girls. At the playday which was held at Central High School, twelve girls were allowed to participate in the improvisation of Street Scene.

Modern dance enthusiasts express their emotions through music.

Jill Appel, Annie Walker and Betty Heidorn practice for the tournament.

Badminton

Once classified as an individual sport, badminton is now a separate sport held during the winter season. Each Wednesday birdies were seen flying all over the gym as the girls practiced for the elimination tournament. Hints on finesse in badminton were given by sportsleader, Betty Heidorn, and the sponsor, Miss Verlie Meyers. The winner of the tournament was Jill Appel, and the runner-up was Annie Walker. Playday was held in the spring at Lunken Airport Playfield along with the other individual sports.
