

Volleyball

One of the most popular of the winter sports among the girls is volleyball. The girls' gym resounded with the shouts of the girls every Monday and Thursday. After a fun practice, teams were chosen and a tournament held. An honor team was chosen, of which Emma Jean Johnson, Joyce Wilkerson, Martha Powell, Jackie Bennie, Nettie Smith, Annie Walker, Viola Macklin, and sportsleader, Livia Kalejs, were members. On January 15, a tournament was held in the girls' gym between the girls' honor team and the "H" Club boys. Despite the fact that the "H" Club was aided by some of the men teachers, the girls won.

The senior high girls' volleyball team defeats a courageous H Club boys' team.

Archery

Students wandering into the gym after school during the spring season run the risk of accidentally stopping an arrow shot by one of the many archers practicing there. Although the ancient bow of Robin Hood has been replaced by the high-powered rifle of today, archery has been growing in popularity as an outdoor sport. At Hughes, archery is open only to senior high girls. A practice was held once a week, Miss Busser giving fundamental instructions to the beginner's group. Nancy Shawhan, the sports leader, supervised the intramural tournament. Many girls from Hughestown participated in the Playday, which was held at Lunken Playfield.

Deadly aim is taken by archers, Nancy Shawhan and Sue Pedretti.

Bowling

St. George's Lanes were invaded by G.A.A. girls every Wednesday after school during bowling season. Bowling held throughout the year was open to any interested senior high girl in G.A.A. On hand to supervise the keglers, was the adviser, Miss Mary Busser. Jo Burcham, sportsleader, made sure the girls didn't throw gutter balls. Lack of participation made it impossible to have bowling teams this year. Honors went to Pat Bailey who maintained the highest average during the season. At the end of the season, the girls found their averages had greatly improved.

The girls' 1959 bowling team consisted of Janet Cox, Joan Lyons, Burma Marion, Jeannette Johnson, Pat Bailey, and Joyce Kappner.
