

Gargoyle Representatives

Each Wednesday morning of the school year, elected students from every homeroom in Hughes are busy carrying out their duties as salesmen of the school newspaper. Before the homeroom period starts the representatives pick up their newspapers at the Gargoyle room. The papers, periodically accompanied by a national supplement, the "Roto," are sold in each homeroom at ten cents each. The "Gargoyle" representatives are also responsible for collecting money for yearly subscriptions to the paper.

Annual Representatives

While the annual staff is busy putting the yearbook together, annual representatives work hard on the sales end of this yearly project. Elected by their fellow students in each homeroom, these representatives have the job of collecting money from the students, keeping accurate records of payments and installments, and making out receipts. They help promote sales in each homeroom and distribute the brand new annuals to the students at the end of the school year.
