DEVELOPING SKILL AND GOOD-WILL

These keys represent the purposes and benefits of participating in the many clubs and activities of Hughes. Drawn together by common interests, students form and strengthen friendships as they cooperate in plans and projects. Many hours after school are spent by teachers and students doing things together that they enjoy—maybe singing, maybe acting, perhaps listening to a guest speaker, or just having a party. The various organizations provide a welcome change from the seriousness of classroom work. After a hard day, relaxation and fellowship are sought in the clubs.
