

Strength In Unity

The strength that lies in a unified body has always been recognized by the leaders in all fields. As the leader he was, Paul Tepe saw this fact.

At the beginning of the school year Paul, as school president, called for all classes and divisions to drop petty jealousies and rivalries and to work as a unit, a family, to make Covington Catholic the school it should be.

No doubt the movement Paul started has not progressed as quickly as it might have had Paul lived but there has been a change at Covington Catholic.

Perhaps it isn't something that an outsider would even notice but members of the Covington Catholic family have experienced a quiet transformation. The rigid borders of classes and divisions have softened and people who formerly didn't associate with each other can now be seen talking and laughing together in the hall ways.

If the Colonels continue to remember Paul Tepe's words this school can look forward to becoming a powerful unit whose presence will be strongly felt in years to come.
