

A school year is filled with many things -- study, sports, organizations and, last but not least, activities. Perhaps the best thing about activities is the fact that they are open to any and every student. He need not have scholarly ability or athletic prowess to participate, only a liking for fun and fellowship.

Assemblies ranging from reptiles to N. A. S. A. are interesting as well as informative. Rallies are designed to encourage spirit and Coney Day provides an outlet for some of this exuberance. The prom, Campbell lodge festival and the senior class play teach the students teamwork and its ensuing rewards.

The school sponsors these activities because it knows that they foster an education that cannot be learned from any book or taught by any teacher. A man is not "whole" until he learns to live and work with the people around him. That, in a nutshell, is the purpose for the group of happenings which we call collectively activities.
