

FOREWORD

Have you ever realized how fortunate we are to live in this modern age? The world holds many opportunities for each of us to get ahead and follow the course of life, our heart's desire. Here at Mariemont we have received a major and basic part of our personality and knowledge building. This is very important for the future.

Mariemont, the "model town," itself, has given each one of us much. We have watched it grow in population and size with these modern times. The model town is not only a beautiful and picturesque place in which to live but also harbors memories, both happy and sad, that would not have been acquired anywhere else. The Bell Tower carolling the hour, the Memorial Church with its quiet, simple beauty, the Village Square and many more will be remembered by us all.

As we go our separate ways, we will not want to forget the gay moments spent during our high school days. In future years this book will help make past days at Mariemont High School more vivid to us. When depressed or weary, we turn these pages and remember our happy times in the "model town."
