

Junior-Senior Home Economics Club

The Junior-Senior Home Economics Club has accomplished many educational and interesting activities this year. Since we studied interior decorating, practically all our trips and projects corresponded with homes and furnishings.

Our first trip of the year was to Sharonville to see the model home. Here we learned how homes will be built to make life easier for the future generation. Our next trip was to Henry Harris to view the latest clothing fashions and then to a department store to study the selection of furniture. Other trips were to the art museum to study period furniture and a housing tour through the slums of Cincinnati.

We have had many fine speakers this year. When Doctor Weaver, president of Lake Erie College for Women, visited our school, we were very fortunate to have him speak to our group. We also had Rose Laird, who spoke to us on cosmetics; Mrs. Don Conover, who spoke on Christmas wrapping and decorating; and Mr. W. J. Fech from House of Flowers, who showed us all the tricks about flowers and their uses.

Our social service project of the year occurred at Christmas when we made baskets of food, collected clothing, and brought gifts for an underprivileged family.

Under the guidance of Miss Birks we finally reached the goal that we had worked toward all year—we selected an interesting place for a sightseeing tour, took a chartered bus, and spent the whole day on our annual home economics trip.
