

Foreword

During the 1955-56 school year there have been many changes made at M.H.S. The athletic field has lost some of its length, the parking lot we once knew is no more, and the spacious lawn west of the building is now the site of a new addition. A new gym, an industrial arts department, and a junior high wing are well on their way toward completion.

This building program reminds us that for the past four years we too have been building. That is, we have been forming the foundation for our lives. Every phase of school life has contributed to our development. Our principal has served as our guide and counselor. Our teachers have trained us in the fundamentals of learning. Our clubs and organizations have taught us how to co-operate and work with others. Our athletic program has provided healthful competition, and encouraged a sense of fair play. Our class plays, variety shows, and our traditional school dances have given us poise and a well-rounded school life. We have acquired many friends, and have had much fun during our high school years.

By broadening our scope of knowledge we have increased our usefulness as good American citizens, and have better equipped ourselves for the future. What lies ahead of us only time will tell, but for the present we must continue to build upon the firm foundation we have attained.

M. S.