

note

for many years the quality of workmanship and creativity in high school yearbooks has stood as a plateau. they have followed an almost absolute criteria for their format and in most cases have been dull and repetitious in their subject matter. over the past ten years the voluntary purchase of yearbooks by high school students has steadily dwindled from almost 100% sales to what has been experienced recently-50% or less, with the majority of books by the members of the graduating class. do not expect to find the "usual", as you peruse the following pages, but be surprised and we hope refreshed while viewing our attempt to present to the buyer (students) of the future, something a little more enjoyable than the books they find on library shelves, in attics, or under beds. what is attempted in the 1971 templar is a creative comprehensive photographic essay to present a record of the year as experienced by the class of 1971. all facets are represented in as concise a presentation as possible with additions and omissions entirely intentional but with no forethought to slight or favor any one person or group. we welcome your criticism and comments on the 1971 templar. please address all correspondence to the yearbook advisors, moeller high school, 9001 montgomery road, cincinnati, ohio 45242.
