Moeller's Future Teachers of America, though new and unpublicized, tried to take an active and meaningful role in school activities. The members of this club take positions as substitute teachers and are in charge of the school activities sign. The club featured guest speakers on the latest teaching methods and field trips to universities to study the educational facilities available to today's student.

The club is dedicated not just to the making of tomorrow's teachers, but to helping today's student decide his future profession. We hope to make the complex decisions of the high school student's future a bit easier.

With Bro. James Letostak as moderator, successful operations such as a massive tutoring program and in class observations of teaching methods were made possible. Any student interested in the teaching profession or just undecided about his future would find this club extremely rewarding.

Russell and Schulhoff plan their future.

Greg and George do their thing.
