

The Last Mile

● distance men race toward victory

● Even though everyone else is lost in the thrills of football, there is a small group of boys which takes great pride in its ability to endure the rigors of the cross-country course. This little group receives very little publicity, but it derives its glory from the satisfaction that comes with a job well done. This year two boys, Earl Kinley and Al Tevis, won medals in the District Cross Country Meet held at Avon Field Golf Course. Mr. Wirth does an excellent job of coaching these boys in the fundamentals of the race and of developing future cross country material. As cross country is a fall sport, the courses are usually made difficult by mud, leaves, ruts, fallen logs, and snapping branches. In spite of these obstacles, the boys enjoy the sport and continue to vie in endurance meets in the fall.
