

In Tribute...

The Withrow Annual staffs are proud of this rare and unusual opportunity—the inclusion of these tribute pages in your annual honoring a man who is as much a part of Withrow tradition as the tower. For the past twenty-eight years this high school has been privileged to have an outstanding humanitarian and educator on its staff. The year nineteen-fifty-one saw the close of his teaching physics only to take up teaching the word of God. Most of the older students will recognize the above description as that of “Brother” Howe. His real name is Clayton M. Howe but the students knew him as “Brother” and he knew them through the same friendly token.

To many, “Brother” Howe was only a legend, but after seeing him deliver the fiery pep talk that led the team to victory, he was beloved by all.

Out in the wilderness of Remington, Ohio stands a small white church. This church is now the life of a man who was last year a teacher at Withrow. The Remington Memorial Church each Sunday seems to send out a call for all to come.
