

Kneeling: P. Hartman, E. Brennan, K. Stith; J. Day. Seated: H. Anderson, M. Stickney, J. Gilbert, S. Morten—Pres., C. Finn, N. Sylvester, H. Littman, M. Stoner, E. Merrill. Standing: P. Helsher, E. Littmann; N. Shepherd, M. Assing, G. Evans, S. Usher, M. Kaufman, M. Powers, R. Rensing, J. McKee, A. Edwards.

"Will the meeting please come to order? For the roll call today everyone must respond with the name of a famous American contemporary author or poet." Sue Morten, the president of Scribblers, gets down to business in a semi-monthly meeting of the junior-senior girls' honorary literary society. These thirty promising penmen assemble with Miss June Wood as sponsor, for the purpose of promoting an interest in literature and creating a desire for original production. A Scribblers honor girl is selected in the spring for active interest and leadership in the club. A grand time is had by all in the annual Philologia-Scribblers party exchange.

Just as it's absurd to read a mystery

Newly inducted Scribblers join the older members in delectable refreshments and babbling talk at the initiation. Compliments and jokes dominate the lively conversation.

