Everybody wants to be on the winning team, and he is highly regarded who can boast of his squad as having won more games, scored more points, or placed higher in the league than his less fortunate opponent. And here at Withrow we have eighteen teams, each one a winner, and every one capable of boasting at least of stiff competition for anyone having sufficient intestinal fortitude to challenge even the superiority of Withrow tradition. But on the field all previous scores are forgotten and previous records cast aside, and every team is individually responsible for this game. Their record is what tradition is made of. Still, Withrow's tradition and past scores effectively tell of what her spirit consists, and show the power of the spectators behind the teams.
