

The Minstrel cast must contain a large variety of features, skits, and unusual numbers to show versatility.

Zip and spice are added to the Minstrels as the soloists display their talents. The songs are sung in a mood that is light and gay or dreamy and melodious according to the tempo and rhythm of the piece. Many tedious and long rehearsals are attended by these hard-working performers before the glorious Minstrels have that professional touch that the audience loves to see. The endmens' antics tickle the funny bone of the audience. Their ridiculous, but clever, jokes and skits are enjoyed by all who observe them. The lively humor shown by the boys lifts any downcast heart or spirit.

Minstrels, entertainment for everyone.

Deserved applause always greets a Ruth Cann or Ralph Montgomery solo, and a Billie Hunter-Carl Gentry duet.
