Facets

Facets! Follow us through these pages to find how you make Withrow what it is and how our many-sided school determines a major portion of your life and character. Our interpretation of Withrow involves Facets—plane minute surfaces of a cut gem. These surfaces are numerous, each reflecting light in a different manner. All of these Facets, or sides, unite to form the sparkling gem in its entirety. The Annual Staff is paralleling Withrow with such a jewel. Many of you fail to respond to the manifold facets of Withrow whether they be material or emotional. Everything at Withrow makes up her Facets—the activities, the faculty, and you, the most essential part—perhaps a glimpse of the passing scene, a moment of elation, of triumph, or a moment of sadness, or defeat. The separate Facets of your school are here waiting for you, the student body, to help formulate them into a complete, intricate mechanism. All our Facets are derived from you, the individual—achieving, combining, and uniting. The impact of these Facets can be strong, the delight, intense, depending on how you, the craftsmen of Withrow's Facets develop them. In selecting the word Facets as the theme we hope that we have succeeded in relating it so that you will be aware of these Facets; and many years from now when you take the book from its dusty hiding place, it will renew all your memories of Withrow.

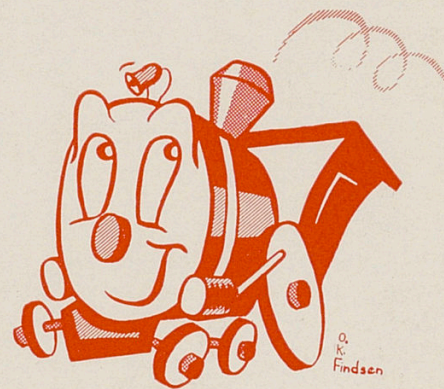

A little black and orange switch engine, being almost of high school age, decided to see what school was really like. Upon passing Withrow's campus, he jumped the track and landed at home plate on the baseball field. Slightly confused, he ran the bases twice and found himself in the midst of a football scrimmage. Mr. Gilliland told him he wasn't big enough for the team so he dejectedly wandered over to the hockey field where a group of girls was playing. Since Little Engine was a male choo-choo, hockey just wasn't the game for him. Consequently he decided to join a mixed doubles match which was in progress on the tennis court, but as soon as he arrived the game ended. While wondering what to do next, a golf ball hit him on the cow catcher. Little Engine went to the garage to rest. After his boiler plate had been patched, he chugged to the gym for some exercise on the indoor track. But he had not speculated on the small size of the track and became so dizzy that he fell down the steps, out the door, over the stadium wall into the cinders. He puffed across the football field and decided to look into the Junior High. It was time for lunch so Little Engine gave the kids a ride to Senior High. There he helped them sneak to the front of the lunch line. Mr. Knost didn't approve of the little switch engine's antics so he started to chase him out of the lunchroom. Little Engine managed to elude him by entering the first room he saw. The class was out to lunch so Little Engine amused himself leafing through the books. When the teacher and the class returned, they were amazed to find a switch engine gaily drawing pictures on the blackboard. Although the pupils were delighted the teacher was quite annoyed with his presence in her once tidy room. Little Engine realized this, so he ran out of the room before the powers that be had a chance to send him away. He steamed down the steps into the auditorium where he had great fun "aceing" up and down the aisles. His mischievous fun was abruptly interrupted by Mr. Mathias' entrance. The principal explained to the little engine that Withrow wasn't the place for a switch engine. He proposed making an exception to the rule to permit Little Engine to study with the Withrowites. Little Engine appreciated Mr. Mathias' concern but refused his offer and chugged out of W. H. S. He passed the tower and rolled over the bridge, concluding that the whirl of school life definitely did not agree with him.

Situated in this utopian landscape is our Alma Mater, encircled by pathways which all seem to lead to the tower, symbolic of the never-ending, but always rewarding search for a higher education.

To learn our lessons well in Shakespeare's Hamlet, which is included in fourth year English, is easily comprehended when acted out by the students. Such acting requires not only memorizing many lines, but also the understanding of the personality and feelings of the character to be portrayed.

 Going to college? Are frats and sororities worthwhile? Does anyone have suggestions for Student Council? Stimulating discussions of this sort can be heard during extended home room period. This half hour was established to try to strengthen relationships between home and school, promoting sound pupil adjustment.

Balconies, guitars, and serapes set the enchanting scene for gay romances and care-free hours created here by the vast reservoir of knowledge attained while studying the customs, atmospheres, and languages of our South-of-the-border friends and neighbors.

Let's peek into Miss Shaffer's third period history class. The question of who was going to be our next president had caused a great problem. As we see by the posters the feeling was quite evenly distributed, but Phyllis Hamlin seemed sure which of the candidates would be her choice!

Are the plains sear or fertile-or the mountains snow-capped and sheer? Do seas have warm currents flowing? Are there inland lakes of salt brine? Geography answers questions such as these for the inquiring beginner.

A prickly porcupine caused the owner of this battered hat serious trouble, which might have been prevented if he had attended one of the biology classes of Mr. Heger.

life; to apply with thought

Radius; luna; humerus; phalanges; metacarpus - some students of Miss Denner endeavor to learn the bones of the arm and hand, while others determine the characteristics of the skull. Another group looks at a chart and wonders if they will ever be able to spell such unpronounceable words.

Being keen and utilitarian, this group spends time in practicalities. Learning architectural drawing laws, applying them competently, finally gathering facts into realistic designs — possibly this is the start of an outstanding career.

the guidance we receive; to build a

Skill in artistic ability and designing know-how is demonstrated when the pupils of Miss Broadbent's costume design class to pick up pencil and paper to try their hand at sketching a formal that is the current style in the ever changing fashion world.

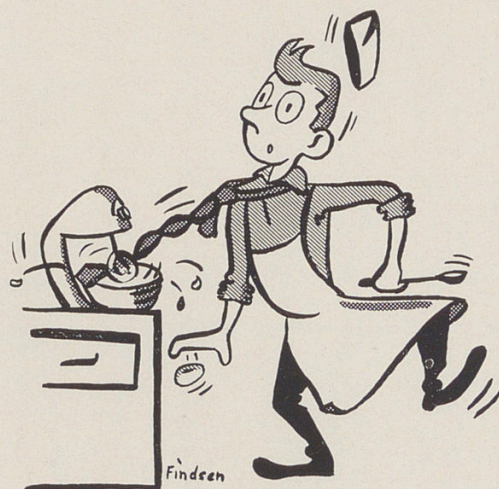

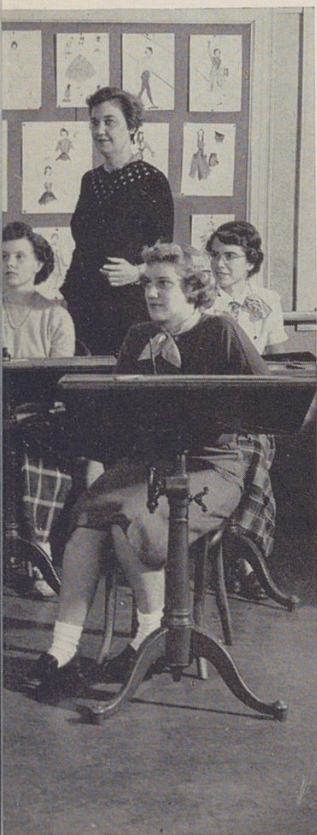

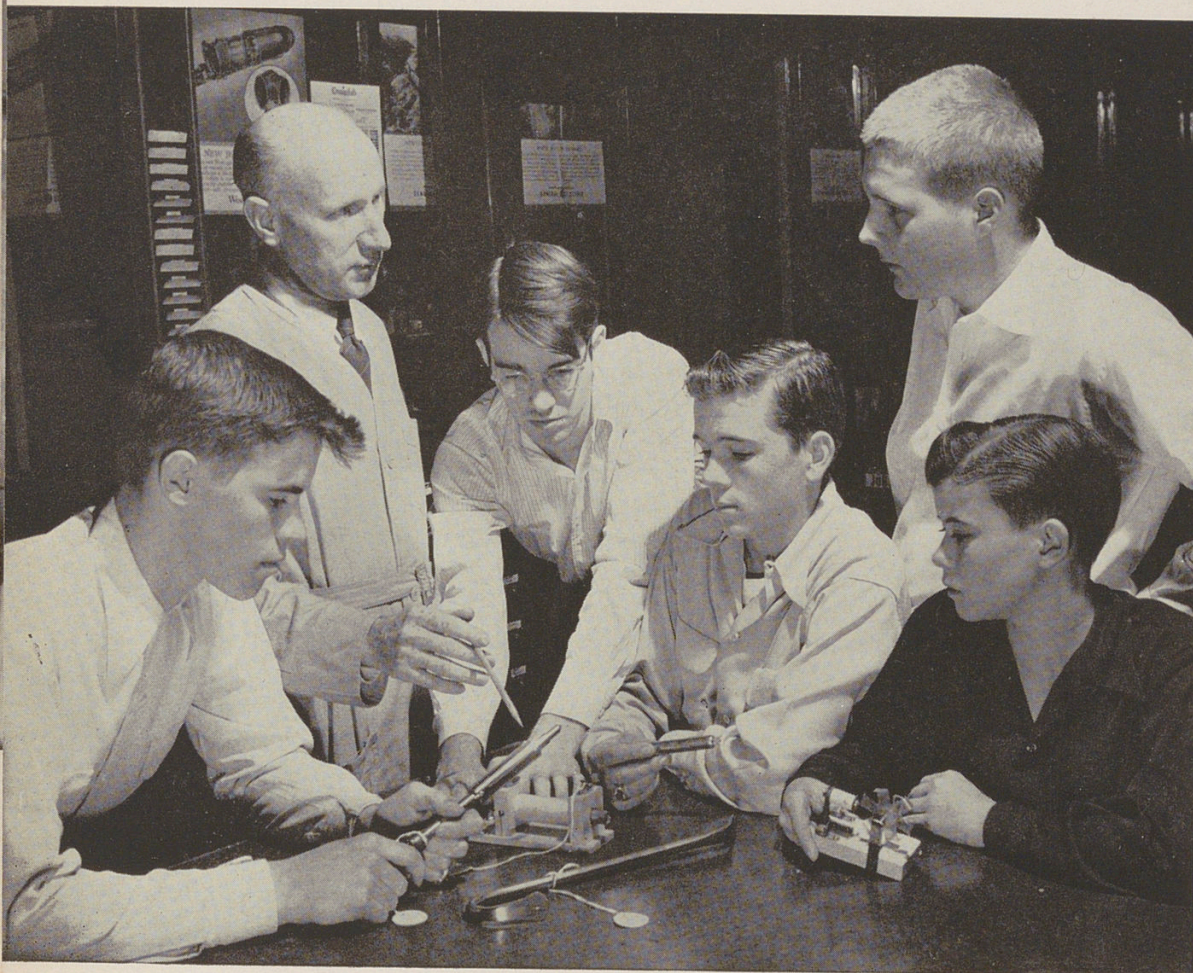

Homemaking can be fun! Popovers with a delicious appearance and pleasing aroma emerge from the oven. Homemakers in hopeful anticipation await the results of their long and diligent work.

better world for the next generation;

Ever make a radio? Or a Duncan Phyfe chair? No? Well, neither have we. However, in the 1952 Ford Industrial Art Awards contest, there were 5,100 entries competing for prizes as high as $100. The top winners also got a three day visit in Michigan to try for the $200 Special Award prize. Among this year's winners were five Withrow boys.

to observe and improve and contribute

Pride was felt by these boys when they were presented the Ford Awards for their recent production of wrought metal, iron crowbars, and electrical devices such as a pen light, two induction coils, and a clock type motor besides.

While visions of chocolate sodas and cherry cokes danced through their heads, hungry students trooped to the square to enjoy this friendly hour of food and gossip.

Head "bookworm" and caretaker of the bookroom is affable Glenn Burress, who at the moment is acting the part of "teacher's little helper" by diligently searching in dusty corners for a lost book—two or more?

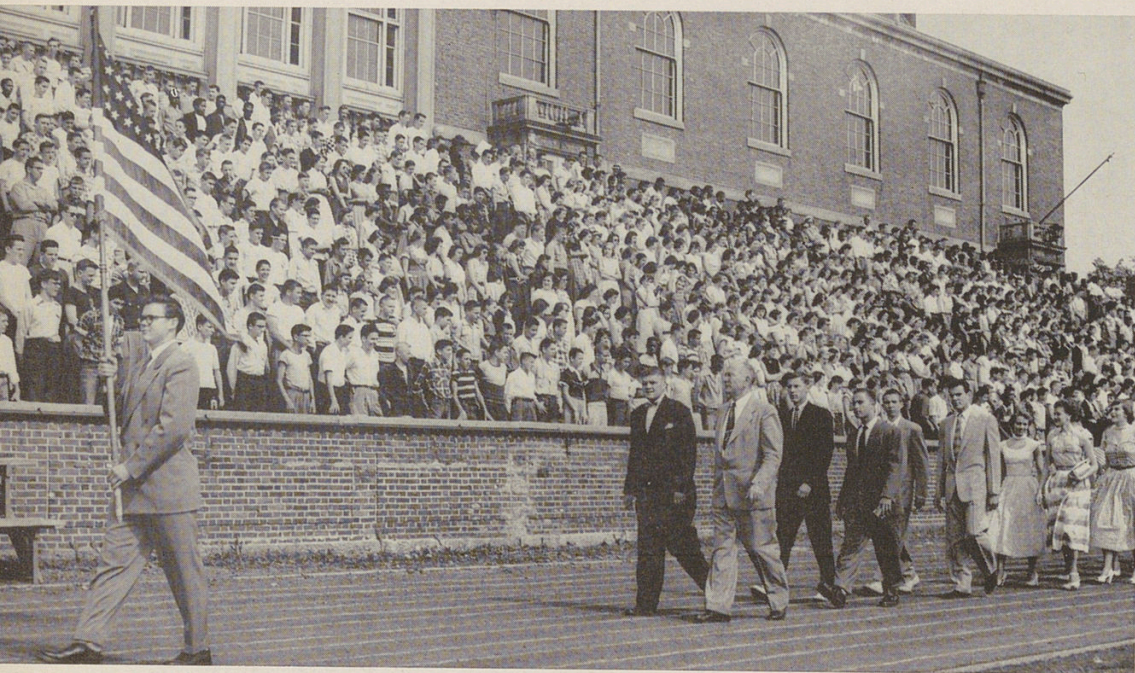

Although munching on the tip of a pencil does not always help the brain to begin its work toward dreaded assignments, it is a wondrous aid in daydreaming.

our best to mankind; to accept defeat

Seniors are silent, marching down their last path of high school life.

Pride is felt for Don Currens; he receives the Columbia Award.

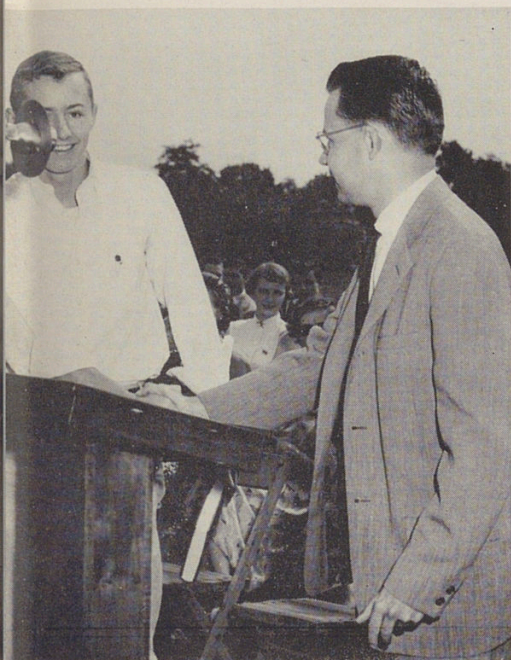

The rainbow-like ribbon of pastel dresses, winding over the drive and across the field, changing suddenly to a line of Navy blue suits . . . these are the seniors, Withrow's pride and joy. Here on Awards Day the outstanding are recognized. They leave behind them a firm foundation for the next year, and take with them accumulated knowledge and the memory of wonderful years gone by.

as well as

The Harvard Book Award for a deserving junior goes to Ed Heiser.

Looking for a cloud with a silver lining? Withrow gives some away every year on Awards Day, but the silver in these clouds is refined with determination and drive, and every cloud is formed by sweat and strain. Some clouds have college embroidered in their folds. Others hold that cherished thrill, the call of Dux Femina or Sigma Gamma. But all reveal that only those students who labor long are rewarded.

Smiles and tears are combined as Dux and Sig welcome the new members.

victory—these are our highest aims.

In Tribute...

The Withrow Annual staffs are proud of this rare and unusual opportunity—the inclusion of these tribute pages in your annual honoring a man who is as much a part of Withrow tradition as the tower. For the past twenty-eight years this high school has been privileged to have an outstanding humanitarian and educator on its staff. The year nineteen-fifty-one saw the close of his teaching physics only to take up teaching the word of God. Most of the older students will recognize the above description as that of “Brother” Howe. His real name is Clayton M. Howe but the students knew him as “Brother” and he knew them through the same friendly token.

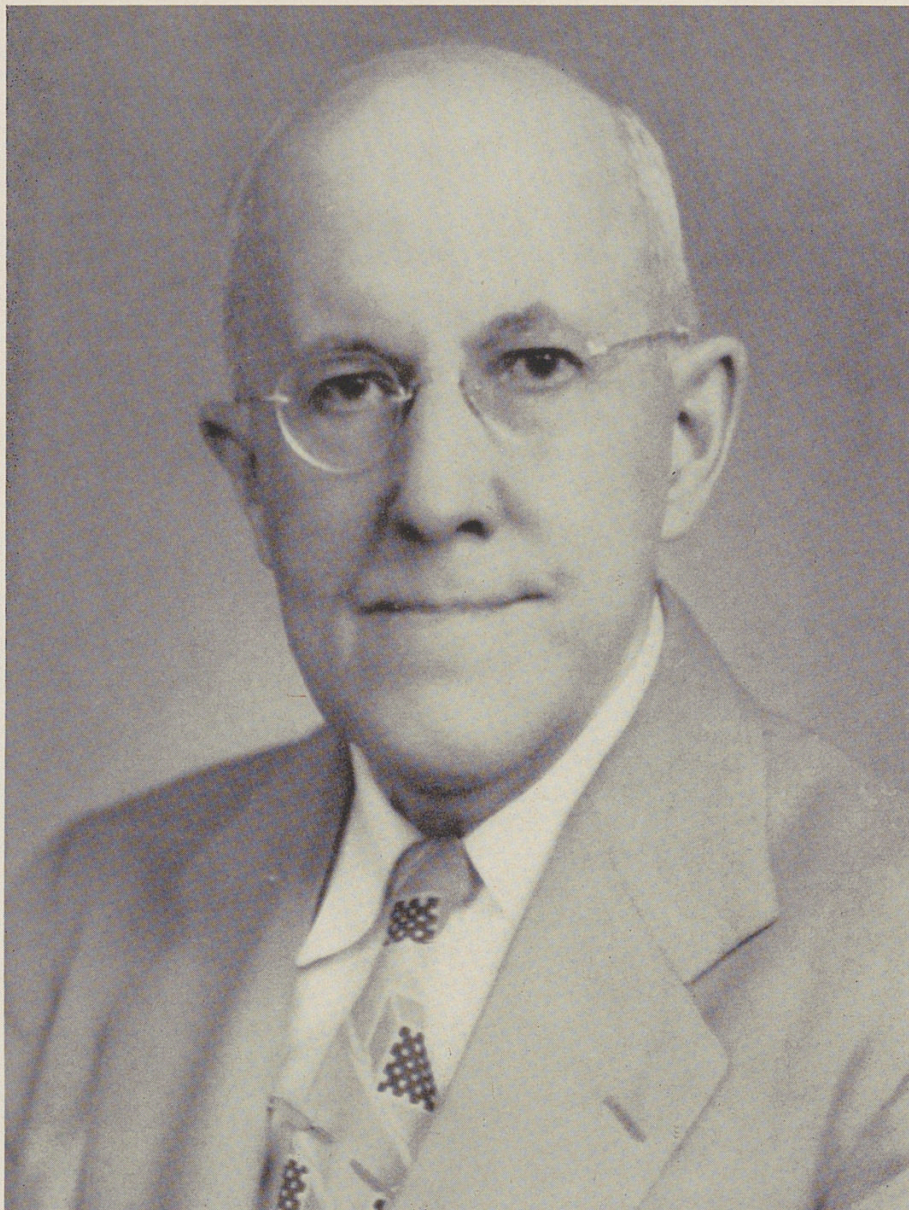

To many, “Brother” Howe was only a legend, but after seeing him deliver the fiery pep talk that led the team to victory, he was beloved by all.

Out in the wilderness of Remington, Ohio stands a small white church. This church is now the life of a man who was last year a teacher at Withrow. The Remington Memorial Church each Sunday seems to send out a call for all to come.

Never to be forgotten in the hearts of all Withrow students are the memories of kindness and generosity shown to his pupils by one of Withrow's outstanding teachers, Clayton Howe. Even though "Brother Howe" has retired, his image will remain.

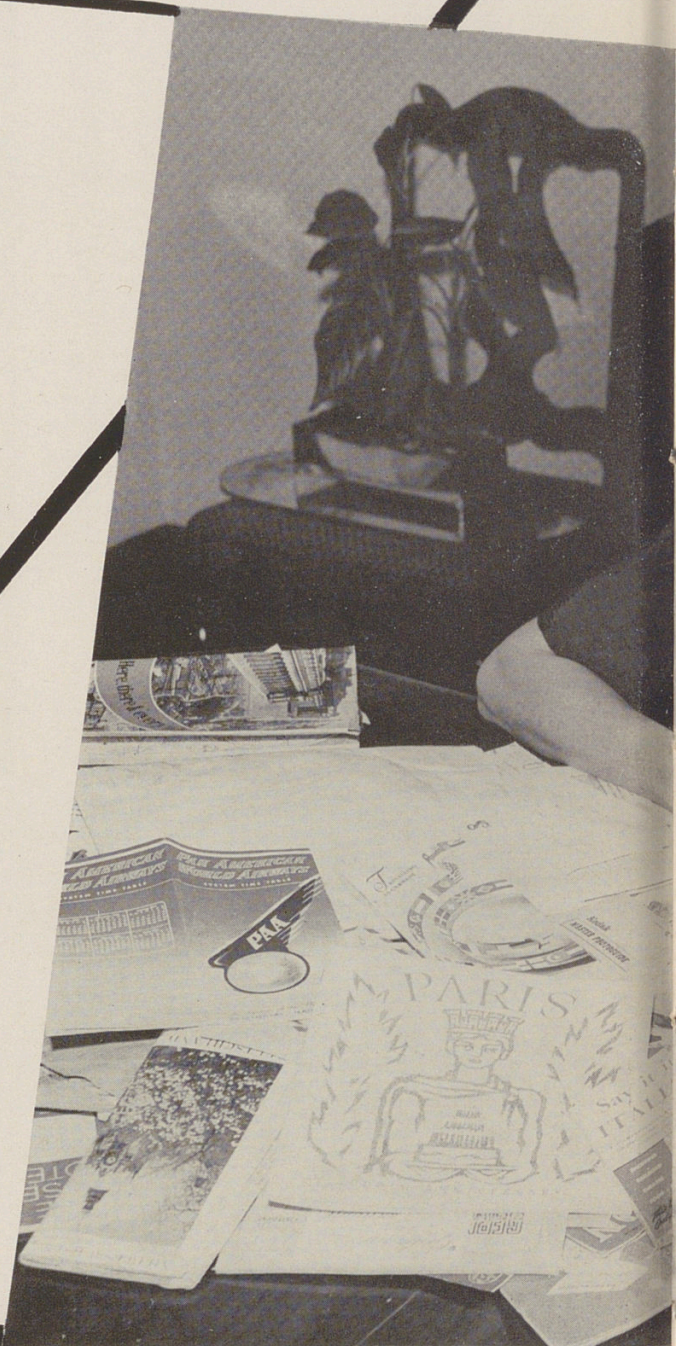

Selecting another branch of the tree of education, Mr. Howe has answered the call to ministry and is aiming in his work to inspire spiritually the young and old in his congregation and bring to them the courage and faith that makes his own life so full.

A d m i n i s t r a t i o n

Withrow's administrative body is a beacon of light to sea-faring students who are struggling on the seas of knowledge. When the aspirants are driven away from their designated course of travel, the administration's various members seek to guide them back to the prescribed way. They chart their studies and endeavor to direct them into the career suited for the individual. The farthest reaching rays of lights are the top authorities, Mr. Mathias, assisted by his invaluable aids Mr. Vigard, and Mr. Wilbur of Little Withrow. The Junior and Senior boys are counselled by Mr. Vigard, whose schedule is also filled with the advisorship of Sigma Gamma. Mr. Wilbur works with Junior High's Effies and E-flats, compassing their paths so that they may become sturdy shipmates of those who sail smoothly in the sea of life.

Miss Grove illustrates the Latin derivation of common English words.

Everything great must have a source, a foundation. The source, the foundation of our school is our teachers. They illuminate the road of knowledge and direct the students down this long path. They are entitled to much credit because they form the youth of the present, leading them out of darkness and into light. In their hands is the power to mold children into fine adults. Their job is a tough one, one that is not always appreciated or understood, but for their courage and devotion we honor them. These teachers are trying to show the pupils how to be fine citizens and a credit to the free country we are living in now. Surely if we follow in their steps we shall be upright and honest citizens. For never ending work done so diligently our faculty should heartily be commended by all students of Withrow High School.

four fruitful years

Groans or smiles appear as necessary changes are made.

From Edison's first to today's fluorescent.

"Face Lifted"—now a sunny outlook.

What a maze Withrow becomes as painters, electricians, and plasterers invade the premises with their brushes, buckets, wires, and other mysterious gadgets! To have a complete day in regular classrooms actually seems an oddity in some cases. Teachers sadly discover that a scheduled quiz cannot be given; students rejoice in having a class in the auditorium. Dark, dingy rooms and corridors are transformed into bright ones. As the final touches crown this coat of many colors; hardships endured seem slight.

Plasterers and painters supply "the new look" to a seemingly enormous number of ceiling cracks and the stadium railings.

Leaves, leaves, red and rust—won't they ever stop falling!

Janitorial and Lunchroom Staffs

Have you ever looked behind the scenes of Withrow? While we go busily on our way, day after day, many people are working hard to do the things we take for granted. Have you thought of the planning and work it takes to feed 3,200 students and teachers? All the dishes that have to be washed! Never again shall we complain about helping at home! Remember that candy wrapper you carelessly dropped after lunch? It was gone the next day, where did it go? Of course! The custodians swept it away! Although we usually show little appreciation for it, we want to say "Thank You" now, for helping us through the year.

School Services

Adding the final touches that give an extra glow to our gem, these student and school services increase the efficiency of the school management. During working hours their concerns vary from printing a morning bulletin to reporting absences and assisting in the main office. Without their invaluable help life at school would probably be filled with chaotic confusion and mystifying mistakes.

Whisking from room to room, Miss Shaffer's harried freshmen rush, rush, rush to pick up absence slips in home room period.

Student Council

What organization at Withrow encourages leadership and high scholarship, creates a greater sense of responsibility among students, furthers school spirit, and fosters understanding and co-operation between the students and the faculty members? Student Council, of course. Although it is only in its second year, its goal, democracy at school, is impending.

Democracy in school is exemplified in the election of Student Council members. Each spring a representative from each homeroom is elected for the council. Members at large are then selected to make the representation from each class equal. Out of these the group chooses four people whom they think will best carry out their aims and purposes. This year Ed Heiser heads this resolute organization. Taking charge of projects is John Godley, vice-president, while Roberta Karnes assumes the title of Chancellor of the Exchequer and Gwenn Miller records each meeting's data. New policies are invoked by them.

"Don't gum up the works," plead Student Council members, waging ever necessary clean-up campaigns. Each year posters and blotters constantly remind the student body of this drive. Another worthwhile project is the provision of napkins in the lunchroom. The value of the recent addition to the main hall is illustrated by the number of people who flock to use the phone after school. To promote school spirit the council sold shakers and ended the victorious football season with The Football Fantasy. With the proceeds from this dance our snappy cheerleader costumes were bought.

Zoom! and they're off. Izzy and his M-G are in the lead racing with the moon on the famous Withrow Bridge. As he skids to a halt, he jumps out and casually strolls over to where we have nervously been watching him demonstrate his thrilling ambition.

Anyone sitting in school on a warm spring day would sympathize with "Cefin" and Betty, who were caught fulfilling their secret ambition. While Withrow's fountain was not originally designed for this purpose, both agree that it makes a dandy wading pool.

The outstanding students

Dux Femina — leader of women — the aspiration of all Withrow girls from freshman on—a perfect reward for three years well spent—whipped cream on the dessert of schooling. These select sixteen can often be found selling donuts or helping the DAV collect money on its "Forget-me-not Day." All the profits from Dux's varied activities go toward their scholarship, given annually to a senior girl. They work hard and love it; Withrow loves them!

Little donuts and big ones, sugary and cinamon; twisters, the old favorite with a hole in the middle, and a new kind which sports a chocolate top—a thousand dozen of these were sold by the ambitious Dux girls during football season.

give our facets depth, but it

"Sigma Gamma calls" . . . Who is it? Will he make it? These were the mumbles as the outgoing Sigs "called" the twelve most active and scholarly boys to lead the class of '53. Last fall, these boys staged the fourth annual Tiger Town Twirl. Over a thousand Withrowites made this dance the most successful in Sigma Gamma's history. In February, Sig and Dux had their traditional progressive dinner. At the end of the year, Sig sponsored the Senior Prom. Sigma Gamma is the goal of every underclassman. Once he has made it, no sacrifice for this honor group is regretted.

seniors hold hopes

Seniors of different schools have various ideals and ambitions carried out in many ways. Those at Withrow look toward the heights. They register the passing of time by gaily climbing the tower to salute the clock, then return—a senior goal achieved.

Poll Senior Popularity Poll

Who were the most popular guys and gals in school this year? To supply the answer to this intriguing question, Tower News conducted the senior popularity poll early in February, in which senior "wheels" were elected by their classmates to positions of "Best Looking", "Wittiest", or perhaps "Best Dancers". For the first time in history the seniors were not able to decide between two girls, Lila and Macky, for the most popular girl; result — a tie. It will be interesting to see what these people do in the future.

Parents Night

Electrons present a problem to pupil; this is discussed by Mr. Smith, teacher of physics, and anxious parents.

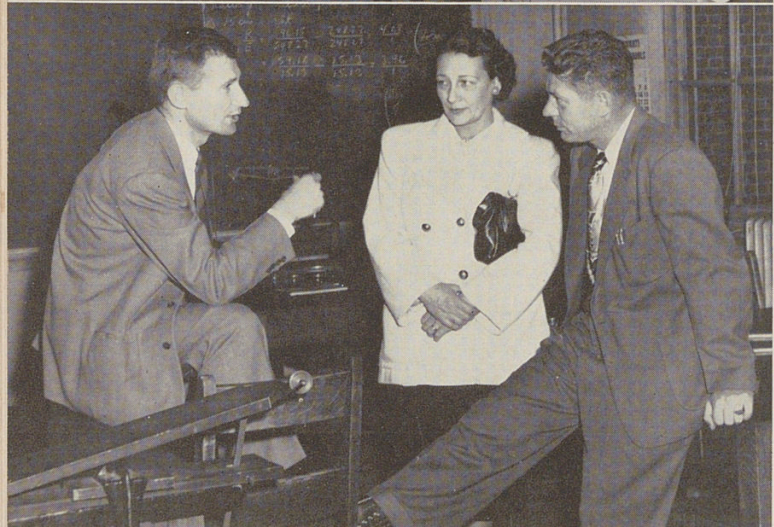

Eager parents find information, advice, and friendly help readily given by Miss Hutchinson, zoology instructor.

Parents' night is the scene of apprehensive moments as Mr. Shirmer relates grades and behavior to the anxious parents.

Even in this day and age, we have get-togethers but not the old-fashioned kind. Ours aren't in the form of busy house-raising, husking bees or quilting parties, but they do draw people together for a common cause. Unlike olden times, there's less hub-bub and merry-making, but instead we have more quiet and thoughtfulness at such gatherings. What are we talking about? Why, we were only discussing Parents' Night, Nov. 14, 1952.

The serious looks on the faces of Mr. Steinmetz and two parents indicate some child's grades need more concentration and study.

Juniors

From the moment they make their debut as upper classmen and assume the dignity suitable to their station, the juniors know they must endeavor to prove themselves worthy of this status. With a whirl of rings, proms, and the more serious facet of career conferences, the year drifts by and they have started paving roads of progress.

Boisterous junior boosters cheer ecstatically as they urge the Tigers onward to victory.

The time for big decisions arrives.

Teen age drivers are, and have always been a most perturbing factor on American highways. In fact, adjectives such as "insane," and "reckless" have come to be synonymous with "teen-ager." At Withrow, Driver Training helps form "Wreckless drivers."

Maturing, our facet deepens in tone.

Lunch time at W.H.S. is one of the most interesting half hours we spend, because each individual has his own idea of what a really good mid-day meal should consist. To the girls, this is a time for will-power; to the boys, this is a time for nourishment.

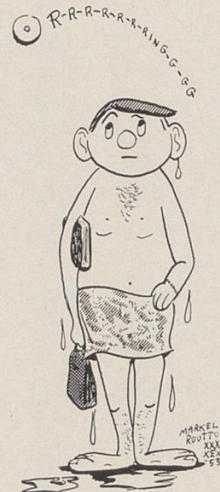

“Lunch” Loud and hearty comes this familiar yell from Withrow’s lunch boy. How lucky we are to be assured of the best meals found anywhere in the world! How lucky we are to get to the lunch-room still alive!!

Sophomores, lost in a misty maze of con-

Although sophomore sophisticates may still be disillusioned about the complicated world hinging around Withrow High, one fact remains clear. That is, sometimes in the years to come, the key of the maze will present itself to these muddled minds. The sophomore adolescents might find themselves unlocking the door through experiences such as occur in this year of perplexity. As days progress, the haughty sophomores seem to think that the key has been uncovered, but after they come face to face with their dreaded physical, they probably will not feel quite as unconquerable as before the ordeal. The impressive study of A Tale of Two Cities will make a lasting imprint which may hasten the interpretation of life's finer, deeper qualities. Despite the helpful hints they obtained, one still can find the sophomore sophisticate; again disillusioned, but yet unconquered.

This year is the proving ground; here

Roaring motors, protesting tires, and fair weather just seem to go together, but even if the weather is rotten, the only thing which is capable of stopping the "Knights of the Open Road" is a lack of gasoline or a broken "gizmo" that can't be easily fixed.

of success or failure becomes clear.

A ceaseless rush of orders from students clamoring in the bookroom to purchase their essential supplies keeps the bookroom boys in a tizzy as they struggle to fill orders, make correct change, and keep their calm composure throughout the daily ordeal.

Oral Class

Persistent effort conquers their handicaps.

A little-heard-of facet in Withrow is the oral class intended to help handicapped teen-agers cope with problems of a hearing world. With their teacher director Mrs. Delores Miles, these students attack their problem on three fronts; understanding others, speaking clearly, and learning the conventional high school subjects. The first phase of this program is accomplished through the use of audio instruments such as earphone amplifiers and hearing aids, and through the teaching of lip reading. The second part, speaking, is a long tedious process consisting of exercises in forming the sounds and plenty of practice. Contrary to popular belief, sign language is not taught. The third portion of the program, that of taking standard high school courses is completed by having the more handicapped members of the group follow special courses while the rest go to the regular classes, industriously competing very successfully with their classmates. The pupils are very proud of their record as they have proved the value of their training by participating in many activities, especially athletics, where they uphold their Alma Mater's honor in many fields.

Although great obstacles must be over-

Arousing adventuresome spirits, Mrs. Miles tells her interested oral class about many lands.

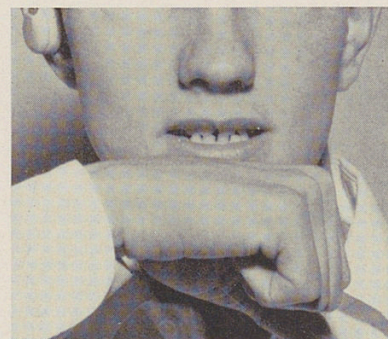

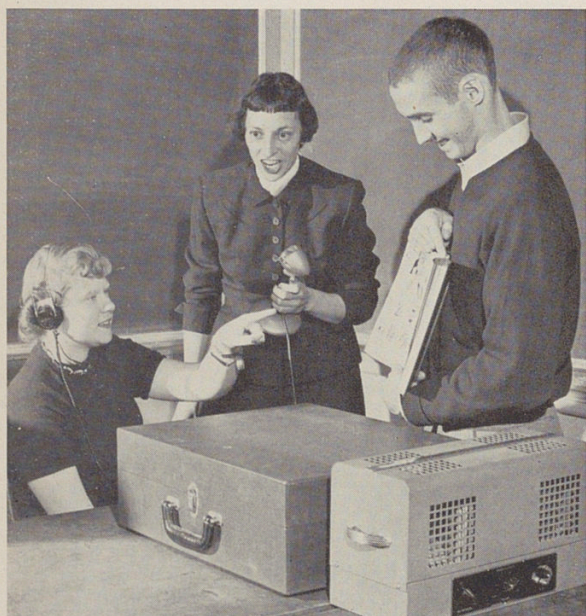

Noticing the minute differences in the vibration caused by different words helps students speak coherently.

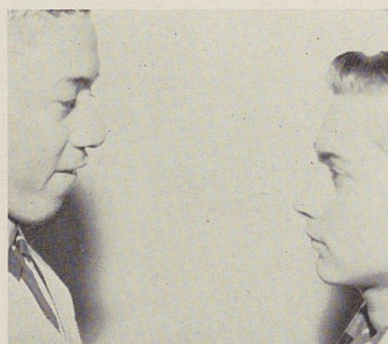

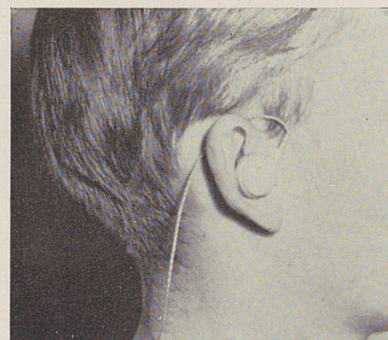

Comparing helps these apt pupils develop better techniques of conversation and proper speech responses.

Instruments such as these supplement lip reading as way of understanding conversation of others.

Freshmen

A freshman is always conspicuous, wherever he may be during the first week of school. Jaunting down halls with their tattle-tale handbooks, freshmen try desperately to find their way around school. But all is hopeless for they're always finding themselves at dead-end stairways trying to get to the basement or looking for a classroom that is in the opposite direction. Early in spring quite a large group of the freshmen class is bubbling over with sincere excitement and enthusiasm for sorority and fraternity rushing. Without the lower classmen the extra spark of life would be lost.

Just look at us now! Mere freshmen!

Gigantic Goliath chuckled a bit perhaps before he took arms against an almost minute David, and this towering scholar will fall with as much ease. All at Withrow isn't tranquility, and sometimes, when a student conflicts with a teacher, a state of hostility is apt to exist.

With halos at a rakish angle, our Injun friends revel in their less angelic moments.

Where "small fry" aim for senior high

"Indians are high-minded; bless their souls double-jointed." Indeed, the Little Withrowites may be viewed from more than one angle. Sometimes they are adorable and angelic, but there are innumerable moments when war-whoops supercede the undeterminable attributes of these cherubs. One never knows whether to expect a halo or a tomahawk from these future Senior High wheels.

"Help Your School And Help Yourself"

Wouldn't you like to have your voice booming over the loudspeakers at an exciting game? That is just one of the authorizations given a group bearing the name of student services. This efficient family of workers includes the projection crew, the key boy, and those who render services in 104, where the selling of tickets and the handling of lost and found articles are managed. Although the responsibility is great, this clan is proud of the job.

Another nickel gone, another locker for the key boy to open.

A familiar punch! punch! punch! coming from the ticket office tells people that Elaine, Nancy, Dick, and Mr. Knost are working.

Is The Motto Of Our Student Services.

Busy as beavers, morning, noon, and night are the workers of our three student service organizations. Membership in these groups entails hard work from the first day of school to the very last. Nancy Morgan is in charge of locker key distribution. This group orders keys to replace those lost and checks defective ones. The Lost and Found is managed by Elaine Parker who recovers lost articles for the pupils. The library assistants keep the books in order.

Keys on the board, keys in the envelopes, keys on the floor, even in dreams they seem to haunt the workers until the job is done.

Issuing and filing books are duties of Sylvia and Bob.

If anyone has found, or lost, a brown fountain pen (or almost anything else), it will be ably taken care of by our "Lost and Found" department.

"Will the meeting please come to order? For the roll call today everyone must respond with the name of a famous American contemporary author or poet." Sue Morten, the president of Scribblers, gets down to business in a semi-monthly meeting of the junior-senior girls' honorary literary society. These thirty promising penmen assemble with Miss June Wood as sponsor, for the purpose of promoting an interest in literature and creating a desire for original production. A Scribblers honor girl is selected in the spring for active interest and leadership in the club. A grand time is had by all in the annual Philologia-Scribblers party exchange.

Philologia, the honorary English and social studies society, is intended primarily to help develop the ability to speak extemporaneously. Therefore the members are often assigned such topics as "The Effects of Purple Birdseed on the Mongolians" in addition to the serious discussions of current problems. Besides learning by doing, the club under Mr. Srofe's direction, puts on a shindig for Scribblers.

The Latin language has been, since the decline and fall of the Roman Empire, a source of multitudes of emotional outlets, yours depending on your association with Latin in everyday life. And so, a group of Withrow students, studying the language, formed an organization devoted not entirely to its study, but also to the use of it in organized social functions and activities. For each person, talents are taken and used in most enjoyable ways. For the musician and dramatist, for instance, songs are sung and skits, such as "Little Red Ridinghood" produced. The group altogether enjoys monthly meetings planned by Miss Grove and Mrs. Maish.

Latin. This year it was awarded to Withrow in recognition of the long and brilliant achievements of Miss Ruth Grove and her Gens Togata.

The old adage, "Experience is the best teacher", proved to be a good foundation for the planning of French Club meetings. At Miss Schroeder's suggestion "Bluebeard" in French, some speakers from France, French Christmas carols, and games were included.

In the spring of 1945 numerous students went to Mrs. Nikoloff, expressing the desire to form a club consisting of those who studied German. This plan was put into effect and the foundation which was laid included a determination to learn more about the German language, its history and customs. In the picture, club members are depicting an ancient celebration, the Christmas Fair, which always succeeded in attributing a blithe festive touch to the departing year.

History Club

Miss Cavendish

Slides on Russia, spiced by Miss Atkins' comments, stimulated discussion in a monthly meeting of the Cleonian History Club. A talk given by Mr. Parker pertaining to the Korean situation brought members up to date on current foreign affairs. Many heated debates, together with a mock presidential election, were held with the aid of Mrs. Parker the adviser.

When Miss Vina Mae Cavendish passed away, Withrow lost, not only a superior teacher, but also a fine woman. We will all be eternally grateful to the beloved teacher for the work and time which she gave to the school. Even those not closely associated with Miss Cavendish will recall her warm and ever-present friendliness.

Withrow has developed a large number of unusual persons who don't want to be professional people, have no desire to become firemen or policemen, and don't even want to be on T. V. They have set as their ambition the top of the most important phase of American economy. These exceptional pupils want to be successful in business and so have banded together in an organization devoted to business success. We usually believe success is measured in how much money or power we have accumulated. Beta Chi has studied the situation, though, and has found that to be truly successful you must not only gain, though this is important, but you must also contribute. And, as one of Withrow's busiest clubs, the members don't sit around playing "Monopoly" under the leadership of their advisor, D. Schroer. They have visited industries, such as W. L. W.—T., and Coca-Cola, and had a fling at free enterprize with their fabulous Sno-Ball dance in December. Business owes a debt to Beta Chi.

The marvelous triangle of the Y.M.C.A., representing spirit, mind, and body, is well represented at Withrow by our finest senior boys, who, through self-development, unwittingly improve every one of us. Withrow students take great pride in the boys of ambitious Beta Hi-Y.

A body can get mighty thirsty at a football game, even if he is only relaxing in the stands. So Beta Hi-Y sells us cokes, and we applaud.

Publications

Possibly at one time or another you have seen people madly charging around 106 and the basement and have wondered about the cause of the bustle. It's all explained by the fierce pride the staff members feel for their two top flight publications, Tower News and Annual. Although the rivalry often runs rampant between the two; it is generally recognized that they are both essential to the full enjoyment of Withrow.

Tower News and Annual, those mechanisms

Assignments, reporting, writing, headlines—and the mad rush is on as Tower News deadline is near.

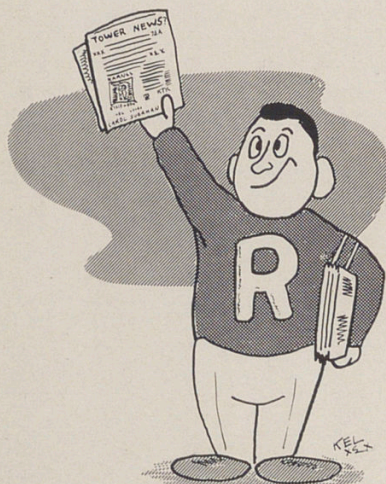

"Full speed ahead"—"second page deadline tonight" are familiar words to the sixty harassed students on the Tower News Staff. Their year's hard toil is almost forgotten when Tower News receives one of the highest ratings for secondary school papers. Two staffs work on the paper—the News Staff writes the news and the Business Staff manages the money and advertisements. Clara Sue, with her assistant editors, reporters, and co-workers, sees to it that the populace of Withrow is well informed about important school events and is reminded ahead of time of approaching exams and future holidays. The ideas of Student Council, typified by such slogans as "Don't Gum up the Works," are carried out and made popular by the paper. Every year, in the school gym, a dance is given. This year it was a turnabout dance, the "Cardiac Capers", held in February. The highlight is the Tower News Banquet when the next year's staff is traditionally announced.

In January they start the Annual train rolling with a tremendous Sales Campaign; they then take the "take" from the Minstrel tryouts to help boost them financially. Amidst their piles of money, accounts, and books, they wonder why they slaved so for all those orders although they know they are one of the mainstays and the support of the best Annual in the State. June finds them frantically distributing Withrow's yearbook. Who are they? Why, the Annual's Business Staff!

Construction and promotion of the ever-popular yearbook causes much time and energy to be relinquished by the business, literary, ad, and art staffs, who strive to create it as a product of importance, satisfaction, and achievement, worthy of recognition. This is a vital job which is largely anticipated each year by both the members of the staffs and advisers. Layouts, sigs, photographs, captions, headlines, cartoons, cover, theme, advertising, promoting, and production are just a few of the many duties these people perform in order to acquire success. At the same time, another constant worry is deadlines, that have to be attained by a specified and precise time. The patient advisers, Mrs. Ladley, Mr. Pfister, and Mr. Nicely, play important roles in undertaking the accomplishment of this feat in a satisfactory manner. The excited activity, ambition, and effort of these students aid them in contending with the many problems which may develop. All of these people deserve much credit and praise for doing such commendable work.

Boys' Sports

Everybody wants to be on the winning team, and he is highly regarded who can boast of his squad as having won more games, scored more points, or placed higher in the league than his less fortunate opponent. And here at Withrow we have eighteen teams, each one a winner, and every one capable of boasting at least of stiff competition for anyone having sufficient intestinal fortitude to challenge even the superiority of Withrow tradition. But on the field all previous scores are forgotten and previous records cast aside, and every team is individually responsible for this game. Their record is what tradition is made of. Still, Withrow's tradition and past scores effectively tell of what her spirit consists, and show the power of the spectators behind the teams.

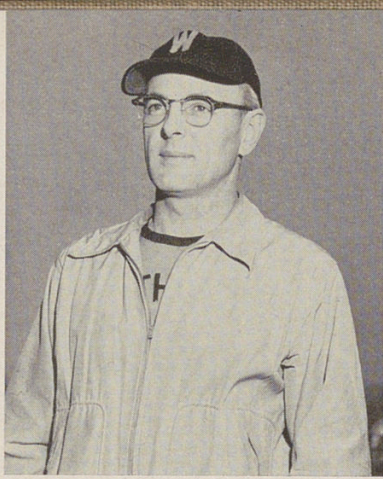

Mistakes corrected by coach Bill Gilliland

The Team . . . . .

With over eighteen different teams, Withrow has a coaching staff composed of eleven of the most efficient and popular men in the city. As should be expected, sportsmanship is stressed by these men. But more than that, the players have the chance to learn the fundamentals, make many lasting friends, and chalk up a good record. When the fans and die-hard rooters are sipping a soda after school, the team and coaches are sweating it out in practice. Assisting in any way possible, the capable managers are the second team behind the team. Their job is cleaning, storing, furnishing, and collecting equipment. Another important job is keeping exact records for the coaches. The team, the coaches, and the managers have combined to form a most stalwart, efficient, and smooth working group which has earned numerous championships and honors for our cherished Alma Mater.

Withrow's sportsman combine athletic

The Tiger varsity again failed to disappoint fans who, through tradition, expect to see championship football. In fact, we outplayed each opponent (with the exception of the never-say-die Cavalier team down the street, who, as usual, did it again.) The guy who wrote our schedule inserted a hard-fighting Dayton Fairview team and the Black and Orange unrelentlessly rolled over them, 26-12. Of course, we defeated our rival, Hughes, in our 33rd encounter, and spirited but easy wins over Woodward, West Hi, and Walnut Hills, we travelled to the new Trechter Stadium defeating a strong Central eleven, favored by only two touchdowns. At the final gun, our season finished with a stunning 41-7 victory over Central to maintain our pigskin superiority. The Cubs climaxed a fairly successful season in third place in their league by winning three, losing three, and tying one. They had their exciting moments too, such as the 22 yd. field goal that decided the Western Hills game. The Frosh demanded special congratulations on their latest undefeated season since 1946. They were almost untouched, having only two touchdowns against them all season.

With the memory of last year's trip to the state semi-finals still fresh in their minds, the '52-'53 Tigers set out to do it again, but graduation took too heavy a toll. The loss of the entire first string left an inexperienced squad to cope with a tough schedule including Dayton Stivers and Hamilton, both ranked very high in the state. Despite everything the orange and black steadily improved to come up with a 9-11 season record and a 4th in the PHSL with a 5-5 slate. Schroeder took scoring honors with 200 pts. and the "Most Valuable Player" award, while Driskell was named "Captain" and Sturwold was "Most Improved Player."

On January 2, 1953, the first annual Public High School League Basketball Carnival was held at the Cincinnati Garden. It could have been "Withrow's Carnival" to judge from the results. The Tigers were on the winning team (teams from the eastern part of the PHSL played those from the western half alternately in 10 minute periods); they scored the most points in one period, and Driskell tied for high scorer. On top of all this, Janet McIntosh was crowned Queen of the Carnival by Mayor Carl W. Rich.

With a surplus of height and fight, but at a disadvantage experience-wise, the cubs put together a 6-11 record and a 5th place in the PHSL this year. Under a new coach, Mr. Rolfes, the reserves steadily improved, but could only beat Woodward, West Hi, and Walnut Hills in their ten PHSL contests. Godley, Venn, Flandreau, and DeVore showed great promise of being varsity material. The big, fast, 1952-3 edition of the Tiger freshman basketball squad, coached by Joe Hedges, displayed a fine defense and the ability to hit consistently while racking up a 11-5 record and a second in regular season PHSL play. Despite a first round loss in the Public Hi Tourney, the team should provide some fine varsity prospects, particularly Lemay, McCaffery, and Brown.

"Flying Tigers" of the swimming and

Mr. Wirth's mermen accomplished a feat this year that makes them unusual, even for Withrow. The orange and black swimmers brought back a runners-up trophy in the Southeastern Swimming meet. Walnut Hills won the nine school meet with 80 points while the Tiger mermen captured  $41\frac{1}{2}$  points to place second. In the city meet, held at Central YMCA, Walnut Hills placed first with  $184\frac{1}{2}$  points and the Tigers placed second with 135. In the same meet the junior swimmers came in second with 82 points to 134 points for Walnut Hills. The record breaking relay teams of Halverstadt, Greene, Heiser, and Schroeder coupled with diver Ron Bradford and individual medley swimmer, Dave Roebuck, are hard to beat in any league.

track teams pile up enough laurels

Williams and Stemer keep their eyes on William Barnes as he demonstrates his form on the high jump.

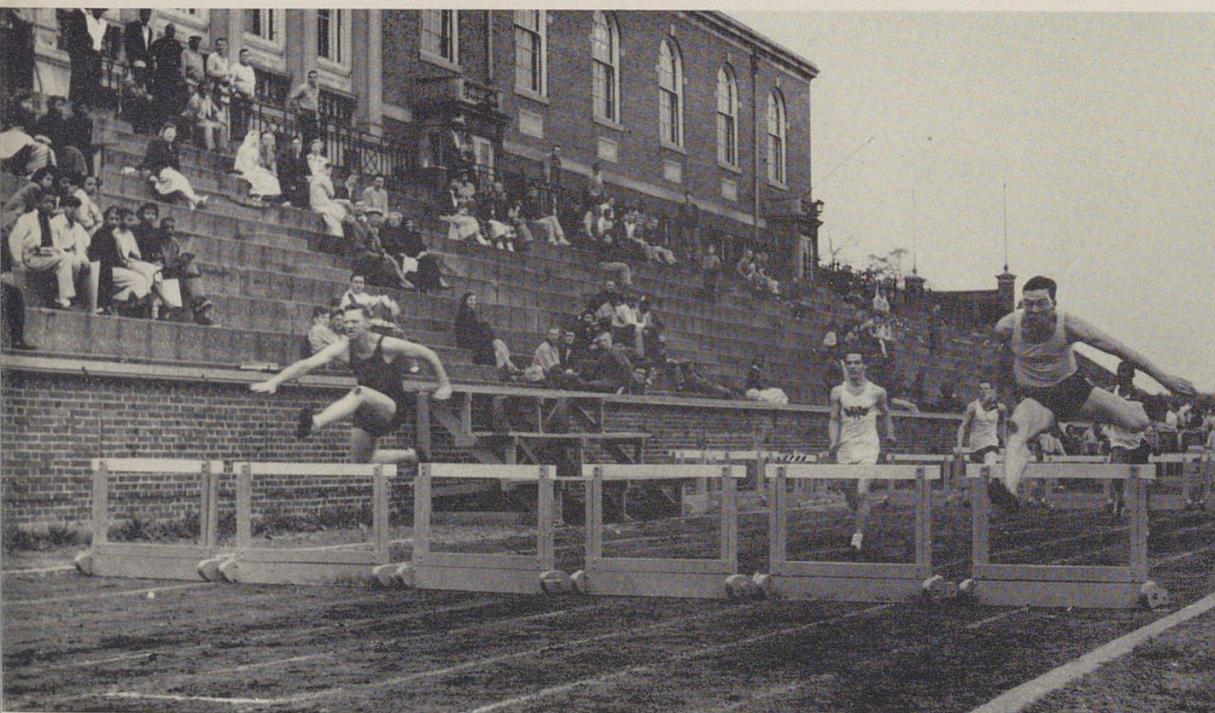

Davis gathers speed and starts his ascent over the pole vault while Armstrong, Manning and Wright watch his style and grace.

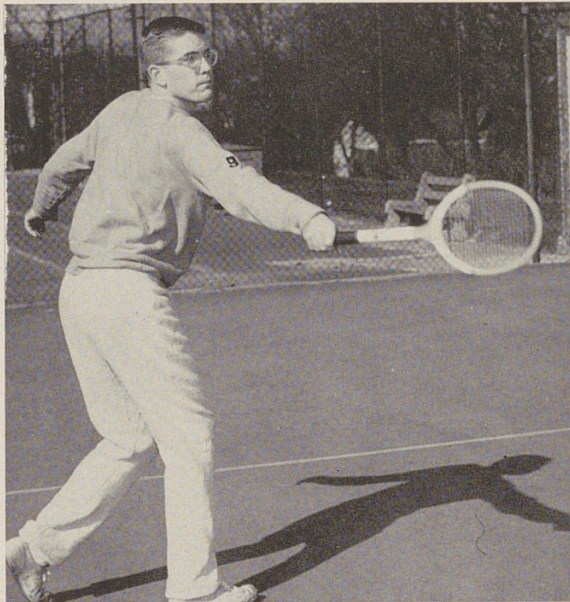

The 1953 edition of the Withrow track team shows fair promise of upholding the Tiger tradition of successful seasons. The team has a hard schedule but has hopes of taking the city crown away from Central. This year, for the first time, Mr. Nimmo's and Mr. Higgins' "thinclads" are entered in some night meets to be run on the new Central Vocational track. The senior team has several four year men on its roster whose long training shows in such stellar performances as Bill Bailey's mile runs. The junior squad is very strong; especially in the field events, winning their meets by wide margins which make future prospects look very good. These runners, jumpers, and weight men work hard all spring, but get their satisfaction from a job well done.

All spring Withrow's tennis courts resound with the constant pounding of ball hitting racket as the Tiger netmen work to retain their titles. Mr. Sherman's charges were hit hard by graduation last June, but in spite of this they are doing well in competition, having won most of their matches up to date.

tennis teams forming

The Tiger tennis team's strength lies for the most part in its juniors and sophomores, for the Varsity netmen have but one senior among them, Doug Craig. The strong reserve squad forces the senior team to give its utmost, for they are always eager to move up the ranks to replace a vanquished varsity man.

"Fore" echoes over the course as the ball zooms overhead bound for the green. The black and orange golf team is coached by "Andy" Owens and sparked by player Glen Burrell. Tryouts for the team are held in the early part of April. The selection of players is based on their record in the screenings. Golf is a game based strictly on skill and judgement (luck helps). The Tigers always prove to have more than needed of both. The Withrow golfers have had an impressive record in PHSL competition.

Withrow's baseball team is perennially near the top of the P.H.S.L. The biggest reason that this is the case is the "mill" or "Tiger Farm System" through which prospective players are put. This development of rookies starts with the reserve team, coached by the highly capable Mr. Mel Russell. The reserves play a full schedule of games in their own league which perfects the skill needed to make the varsity squad. Sportsmanship and Withrow's unbeatable spirit also are instilled into the boys.

Tiger Club is one of Withrow's most exclusive organizations, owing to the fact that only varsity lettermen can become members. With Ronnie Ott as president, this group strives to keep the esprit de corps of the athletes high, as they compete in the various sports. The members may be seen selling cokes at home games, part of the proceeds being used for their annual shindig, an outdoor spring feast, while the rest goes toward its scholarship fund.

Swing your racket with grace and ease—it's not a baseball bat! The many "racket minded" students in our renowned Tennis Club learn these and other skills that are an asset to correct form. Mrs. Lally Sauntering down the G.A.A. road, girls meet new friends and find new pathways and hidden talents. If this thoroughfare be marked off into seasonal chapters, its merry travelers will first stumble upon Autumn Avenue, where hockey attracts attention. As fall drifts away, Winter Road takes over with its volleyball and basketball until it melts into Spring Lane's baseball. Midst all these, Main Street bustles with its scores of year round sports.

Balmy autumn winds find some invigorated G.A.A.ers pushing down the hockey field to make a goal. Opposition is stiff as the backfielders back up their forward line. But then at last a goal is made and again the centers bully at the 50-yard line. Before the winter's driving breath had dwindled play to a standstill, a freshman team captured the lead, while the seniors succeeded in increasing their renown as they grasped the coveted title of class team champions.

Stage, Etc.

The wicked stage puts a certain spice into Withrow life. Here the deep, dark secrets of Macbeth and Little Nell are unfolded.

The stage is set; the curtain opens.

A lowly platform; a mere maze of elevated boards; yet these hold memories of many years. They have known the heartache and success experienced by talented people as they exhibit their skill to the blur known as the audience. "Minstreleers," the pride of Withrow, and young dramatists filled with insecurity and stage fright become transformed with an effort to impress someone with their ability. Yes, without this lowly stage, without this golden opportunity, there would be no show business. It is the training that they receive here today that might make their name famous tomorrow.

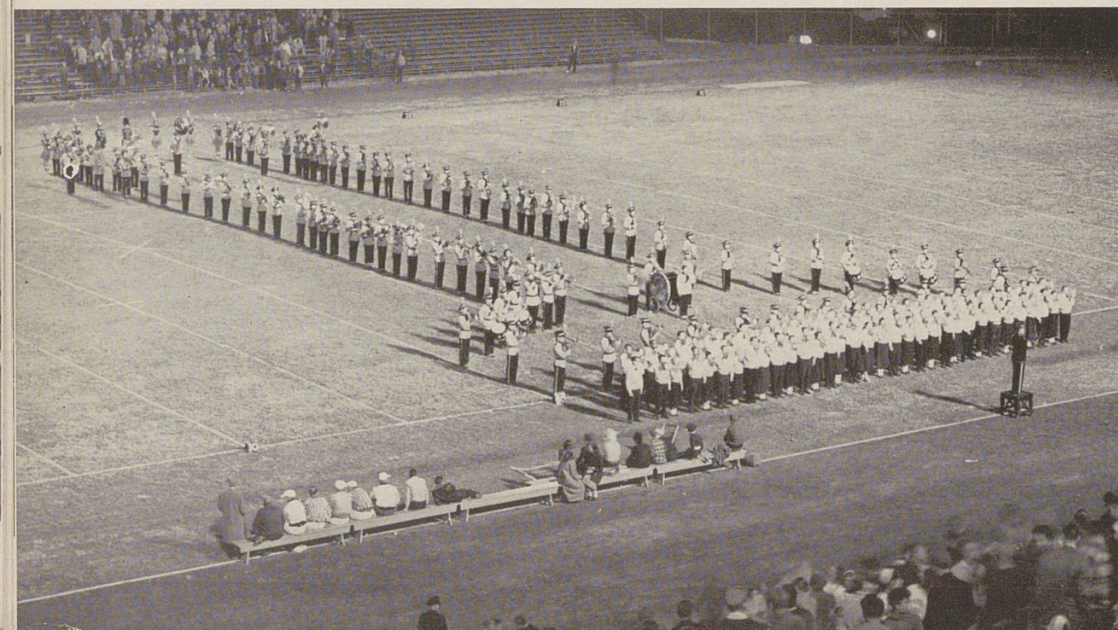

From the tiny piccolo to the huge tuba, each band member in perfecting his music adds invaluable precision to the completeness of a performance. Smittie, the "real gone" director, deserves much credit for his untiring efforts in making the band as outstanding as it is today. Decked out in original white jackets, Senior Choir prepares to sing new renditions of songs at an assembly.

The Withrow Senior Choir pursues an active and worthwhile program during the school year. Passing Room 119 you may have detected the members practicing diligently with Mr. Martin. As a result of these practices their melodious voices may be heard at half-time during a football game, at the annual Christmas Assembly, at the Cincinnati Symphony with the all-city high school choir during the holidays, or in the Minstrels. Withrow's Marching Band is also held high in the hearts of Withrowites. In the fall at the football games students cheer their well-executed formations, and hearts swell with pride as the "Alma Mater" is played. The Band performs at the Christmas concert, and after the new year begins, select members are chosen for Presentation Orchestra.

Talented singers invade Room 119, chattering with anticipation and impatience as they await the distribution of the individual music sheets.

Minstrel Tryouts

End men Gordon Greene, Larry Lyons make funny faces as Barb Robway, Bev Bacon, and Pat Lancaster wonder "how to keep 'em on the farm."

Students flock into the auditorium to witness the tryouts of lucky candidates for the Withrow Minstrels of 1953. Many from the student body compete for a well earned position in the Minstrels. Some are veterans of past years and others are trying their luck for the first time, but everyone works equally hard, whether he is a singer, dancer, or a comedian, to combine with stage and behind stage crews to produce the colossal Withrow Minstrels.

Lovely Margie Schmoll gives her enticing rendition of ballet a la France in the true tradition of the renowned Withrow Minstrels.

Minstrels

Minstrels appear, to the audience, as the ultimate in high school productions. The audience sees the lights, the costumes, the color; it hears the the music, the polished dialogue, the jokes; but it cannot know of the myriad of unusual, sometimes funny things that consolidate it into a show of professional calibre. The endmen, for instance, who, in fun, smear everyone with their make-up after the final curtain; Smitty himself, whose two kicks on the pedestal seem loud enough to resound through the whole auditorium, but, in reality, are heard only by the cast onstage. The call boy who seldom appears; the sticky feeling of hot make-up; the tinge of butterflies on opening night; the swell of pride during the finale; the lights; the costumes; the sounds and the silences; the faces of the cast, one moment twisted with anguish, the next in appealing smiles; the sighs of relief tinted with sadness, because never again can there be a twenty-third show. But most of all, the people, cast and well-wishers alike, who make every show the best. These folks make Minstrels the finest—there can be no finer.

As the Scotch ponies jig, their lively plaid skirts swirl.

With the drums and a sweet sweep of harp music, Presentation Orchestra swings from "Jet," a promise, and preview, into "Hallelujah." With sparkling eyes, flashing feet, and voices eager to sing, the ponies and choir join with the orchestra to make the twenty-third opening the greatest ever. "Pop's" ponies lend their own special glow to many numbers, and choir's "New Moon" breathes with the romance of time gone by. Minstrels are really wonderful this year!

Our Jet ponies spiced with chartreuse dance to Hallelujah.

The Minstrel cast must contain a large variety of features, skits, and unusual numbers to show versatility.

Zip and spice are added to the Minstrels as the soloists display their talents. The songs are sung in a mood that is light and gay or dreamy and melodious according to the tempo and rhythm of the piece. Many tedious and long rehearsals are attended by these hard-working performers before the glorious Minstrels have that professional touch that the audience loves to see. The endmens' antics tickle the funny bone of the audience. Their ridiculous, but clever, jokes and skits are enjoyed by all who observe them. The lively humor shown by the boys lifts any downcast heart or spirit.

This unique showcase display designed by the members of Thalian Dramatic Club, captured the interest of many prospective stage fanatics.

Ranking among the leaders of high school dramatic organizations, Thalian Dramatic Club just naturally has a reputation to uphold. Therefore, every production presented by Thalian is anticipated with great eagerness. Thalian, in return, is always looking for the best possible play to produce and the most adept performers for it. Audience and critic reaction shows that usually this quest is fulfilled. Jack Louiso, the president, has led the group during several parties, meetings every month, and community projects. Their production, "Our Hearts Were Young and Gay," the riotous times of two flappers abroad, by Cornelia Otis Skinner, filled all expectations.

Fraternities and Sororities

The Interfraternity Council, the student governing body of Withrow's social organizations, is composed of two representatives from each of the frats and sororities. This group's avowed purposes are the solving of any inter-group problems and the determining of worthy causes for the various clubs to support, such as the Muscular Dystrophy Fund. The advisory posts are capably filled by Mrs. Schnieder and Mr. Nikoloff.

Laughter and sadness mix in the memories of those who attended the Christmas Formal.

A.B.K.'s attractive Rosie Tartar presents Don "Joe Gridiron" Currans with his gift at A.B.K.'s annual "Gridiron Gallivant."

In 1926 an ambitious group of girls founded the sorority of A.B.K., which through the years has provided many with the experience of enjoying themselves and working with others. During the '52-'53 school year, this club has sponsored both sport dances and formals, while old clothes parties, one on a "Dog Patch" setting and another with a Hawaiian atmosphere, offered fun for all who attended. As Christmas approached, the girls began their annual charitable project, preparing baskets of food, toys, and clothing for several needy families. The members themselves celebrated by caroling. All members cherish memories of A.B.K.

Since 1926, blue and gold, the striking colors of B.O.X. have been the emblem of one of Withrow's outstanding sororities. The variety of its projects has included contributions to the cancer and cerebral palsy funds, aiding a needy family at Christmas, and packing Red Cross boxes for Korea. Distinctive parties and dances characterize the multitude of activities which also include a tea, slumber parties, and a banquet in honor of B.O.X. parents. Always a leading sorority because of the energetic and ceaseless spirit of each of its members, Beta Omega Chi excels in all of its many undertakings, and is indeed much admired.

Wonder where that group of girls is headed? Why, it's that house on the corner. Looks like they're all set for some fun. Maybe we can sneak in with them. Shhhh—sounds like some kind of meeting is going on. A dance for the seventeenth? Slumber party? Rushing? And listen to the music "Cheer, cheer for Chi Lambda Chi"—Oh, of course! It's a CLC sorority meeting and that's Betty Ann Brown presiding. Now the twenty-eight members are discussing a motion to hold a bake sale and paper drive to help finance their plan to aid a needy family by giving a tremendous basket of food and warm clothing to them at Christmas. Let's wish them luck in all of their undertakings.

Kytives, with colors of navy blue and silver, tries to promote friendship, sisterhood, and the art of living and working together. These forty-eight girls spend much of their time planning big dances, such as the "Wishbone Whirl" held at the Topper Club, and the "Wigwam Wiggle." The Christmas Formal, sponsored by the six chapters of Kytives, was held at the beautiful Hartwell Country Club. Bake sales and rummage sales enlarge their pocket-book, while composing and giving baskets of food to the poor and needy increase their pride and sense of helpfulness. Thus these conscientious girls combine extensive service and pleasure to create a wholesome, well-rounded association.

"Oh sisters sing with all your heart for Sigma Delta Chi. Remembering the fun we've had in dear old Withrow High!" Our Senior year, chuck full of parties, dances and charity work, was really fun. Remember the Christmas formal? The bouffant skirts swished across the floor to the smooth music of Ralph's band. I also recall the spirit of giving as we presented the needy children with the piles of presents. Activities like this always linger so long in your memory. "Oh you and I will ne'er forget our friendship till we die. We'll love you even more, our Sigma Delta Chi,"

Tally-Ho . . . it means a small "T" embossed on a pin and guarded by an ever-watchful eagle, the colors black on gold and the Greek letters Gamma Delta Alpha . . . it means slumber parties where nobody "slumbers"; a snowy "Twin-Twinkle"; busy and boisterous meetings; a frosty Christmas formal at the Cincinnati Club and carols ringing out clear; gifts for less fortunate families; rushing; an "April Showers" semi-formal and a French Night Club party; serenading and pledging; a Spring formal; a scholarship given by their Mothers' Club and then, two wonderful weeks at Lake James . . . But—more than this, Tally-Ho means a group of girls enjoying fun and work together.

Tally-Hos fill baskets with Christmas goodies plus joy and cheer.

"Twinkle, twinkle little twins" may well describe Trissie Linn and Ed Shirley as they receive honors as best dressed twins at Tally-Ho's Twin Twinkle.

Flickering candles in the crisp gloamingtide outline faint shadows as soft voices sing Christmas melodies.

Twice every month a bevy of girls holds a conclave at one of their homes to discuss past and future plans. This is Zeta Beta Kappa sorority, commonly known as Z.B.K. Their Christmas formal in the Alms Hotel was followed by a chilly but gay boatribe in April, while later in the spring, after the initiation of new members, a formal was held at the Copper Stallion. The financing of CARE packages completed a busy but enjoyable year for Z.B.K.s and their friends.
