

The well known recipe for fun with girls is p. js., cokes, cards, and a piano, spiced heavily with confusion. The result: a slumber party.

Take one television set, surround with boys, add spine-tingling mystery, mix well with food—any kind. Result: a group of smiling fellas.

Our social relationships are an essential part of our all-around growth. The ability to get along with others can make or break our high school life. Social "Know-how" gives us a sense of security which is important in securing an education. However, to most of us, this adds up to a time when textbooks are forgotten, and friends remembered.

Sig Jig, student-planned, shows how boys and girls enjoy each other. → and we often push work aside to have fun together
