

Looking for a concentration of literary talent? Maybe you have this gift yourself. Withrow offers three organizations where you can display it. One of these, Philologia, has the distinction of being the oldest club at Withrow. The other two, Literatas and its big sister, Scribblers, provide an outlet for expression by girls skilled in English.

Philologia, famous for its panel discussions and notorious for its extemporaneous speeches, is restrained by Mr. Srofe, the sponsor. Meeting twice a month at Knox Presbyterian Church, these pursuers of parliamentary procedure, current events, and public speaking obviously derive great pleasure from their art.

Freshman and sophomore girls in Literatas increase their skills in creative writing. Like Miss Lundquist, who guides Literatas, Miss Wood supervises the junior and senior girls' society, Scribblers. Following diversified Literary fields, Scribblers attracts many. These organizations are honorary; therefore, their quality in literary Withrow is high.

Row 1—T. Newcomb; J. Crews; I. Misali; S. Landers; K. Rengering; J. Zimmerman; F. Eden; J. Schroeder; F. Guckenberger; K. Holwadel. Standing—J. Gibbs. Row 2—J. Herrman; B. Broker; L. Rice; R. Schanzle; F. Dickman; Mr. Srofe. Standing—D. Botsch.

*To Matty, a swell girl in World Geography class.
Sincerely & Deland
A. B. K.*

Literatas, Philologia and Scribblers: Local literati.

President Jack Gibbs brings a Philologia meeting to order as the fellows await the topic of discussion for today's hot air session.

