

In Memoriam

MARCELLA JANE GUTHRIE

In the untimely death of Marcella Jane Guthrie the faculty and students of Woodward High School have suffered an irreparable loss. In all her professional undertakings she showed a keenly intelligent interest and an understanding of co-operative spirit that endeared her to her fellow workers. Her students have lost a friend who was truly sympathetic and helpful with their problems, and it is deeply to be regretted that more students were not granted the experience of working under her rich and stimulating influence.

Miss Guthrie was extremely talented in creative writing. Those of us who were privileged to read her verse feel that a sweet singer has passed, bringing very definite loss to the world of literature as well as to the world of her work and the world of her friends.

Marcella Guthrie won friends by being friendly. Both students and teachers will long remember her pleasant smile, her cheerfulness in the face of pain and discouragement. Though her active spirit is quieted, there is in our midst an awareness of her presence and a sense of gratitude that we enjoyed for a few years the warmth of her affectionate nature, the bright glow of her talents, the high spiritual values of her character.
