

STAGEHANDS

First Row — Jack Werkowitz, Ronald Smith, Mr. von der Halben, Wesley Gilreath, Fred Meeker.
Second Row — Reed White, Albert Heinichen, Albert Lewis.

The stagehands are the dynamo of the auditorium, they are the boys who make the show run. According to their own account, they are the hardest working boys in the entire school. On them depends much of the success of our auditorium sessions. On all occasions, these boys are present to assist in any way possible to give the student body of Woodward entertainment of real value. They are responsible for the setting and clearing of the stage, for lighting effects, and for the correct manipulation of the curtain.

Mr. von der Halben is the Stagehands' best friend. The boys work hard and willingly for him and appreciate his cheerfully given advice. Under his direction they have learned much of the art of stage craft. Ronald Smith is stage manager; Wesley Gilreath, assistant stage manager; Jack Werkowitz, electrician; Fred Meeker, assistant electrician; Reed White, property man; Albert Lewis, assistant property man; Albert Heinichen, chief carpenter.
