

Said the Electrical Mouth to the Electrical Ear . . .

"Joe . . took . . father's . . shoe . .
bench . . out.

She . . was . . waiting . . at . .
my . . lawn."

Passing through the Bell Telephone Laboratories in New York City, you might hear these strange sentences being repeated by an electrical mouth into the transmitter of a telephone.

These sentences contain all the fundamental sounds in the English language that have anything to do with the intensity of sound in speech. By listening to them, by measuring the accuracy with which each sound is carried over the wire, engineers test the quality of the transmitter.

This is only a small example of the work at Bell Laboratories. There, research is carried on constantly in the interest of the telephone user . . . experimenting, testing, figuring out ways to create new equipment or to improve present methods.
