

To the graduating class of 1951 I want to extend sincere congratulations and best wishes.

At this time of world uncertainty I particularly wish the boys "God-speed" and hope that lasting peace may be established soon and that you may be saved the horrors of war. You have completed a long program of work and are now prepared to earn your living and take your place as well-informed citizens. I particularly hope that the graduates of the Commercial Vocational Department will be able to meet each challenge of business life as it presents itself and, through understanding, sympathy, and appreciation, establish friendships which will be lasting and worthwhile.

May the traditions and ambitions inspired by your high school training help you to become loyal members of society. I hope that by the broadening of your experiences and contacts you may assist in bringing about a world-wide peace.
