

VERLA SMITH. Skips the light fantastic. Agile and graceful. Her desire for the future is to become just a "deah ole school marm".

WALTER SMITH. He's a big bundle of talent and capabilities. Just waiting for someone to stick a pin in him so that he will explode.

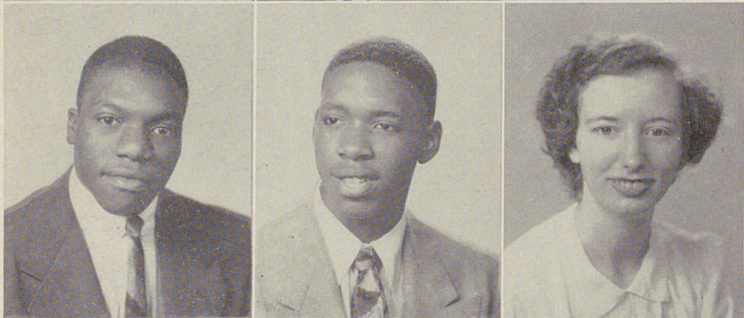

MYRTLE SNELL. Myrtle has gathered an innumerable number of friends during her three years at Woodward — her friendliness is genuine.

ETHEL SPENSE. She doesn't say much, but her quietness is very becoming. There's a world of wonder behind those big blue eyes.

FLOYD SPIES. He never has very much to say, for all his excellent work is done with hands and mind.

BEATRICE SPIVEY. Bea's petite figure is always well groomed. Pleasant disposition accounts for her many friends.

LEROY SPIVEY. One of our top football players, Leroy enjoys all of his school work.

ERNEST SPEARMAN. He always "seems" to be on the sidelines or playing a part in the background — given the opportunity we're sure he will star.

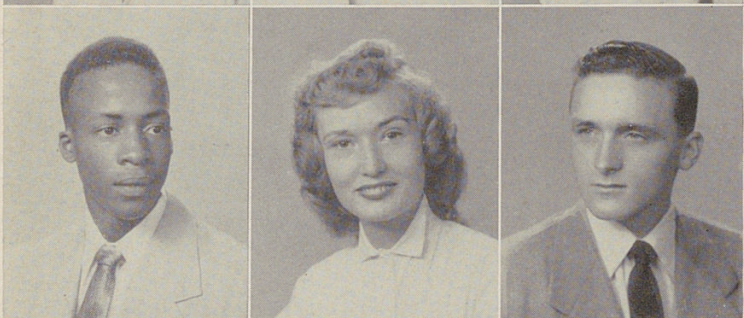

TILLIE STOLLA. You can't "stoll-a-this fair lady" — she's been growing in popularity from the first day she arrived on the scene.

DELORES STAMPER. A truly fine young lady — amiable her friends admire her loyalty.

JOAN STANLEY. Conservative, modest, and quite the girl with the typewriter. She is the T-Y-P-E to succeed.

LA DORIS STEGALL. La Doris is always dependable. Has her pensive moments, but you should see her in a crowd? Lots of fun.

FRANK STEVENS. An indispensable member of the band, a friend and companion to all. Plans to spend next year with Uncle Sam.

GRACE STEVENS. Gracefulness — she's got plenty — Manners she's overrunning with. Where do we put the personality? It takes care of itself.

HAROLD STEWART. "Muscles". We call him this because he lifts weights in his spare time — good in group discussions.

JOETTA STEWARD. Outstanding leadership qualities always looking her best, putting out all the give and take. She could well be a good example for all.

JENNIE MAE STIGALL. Has a real vibrant interest in school and what it offers. Jennie has a lively sense of humor and sparkles with friendliness.

RUSSELL STONE. The quiet type, but you have to watch him. We all like his shy grin and his twinkling eyes.

GIRLIE STORY. Girley has a serious side, but she is usually right in the midst of much gaiety and laughter.

MARY SUNNENBERG. Woodward will lose a very responsible person — dependable and can always be counted on.

CAROL SURRETT. A hard worker — full of fun and energy — she is certain to excel in her life's ambition!
