

As YOU look through the '53 Annual you see words, pictures, names and faces, but as the Annual Staff gazes fondly on the finished product we see a maze of paste, signatures, rulers, tiny strips of print, rubber cement and endless lists of names. But the skeleton finally took shape and into the molding of the book are the efforts and cooperation of a number of people. Mr. Reigel and his economists saw our finances through the year. Mr. Rubendunst kept the lenses focused on activities and was on call frequently. The faithful homeroom representatives boosted our Annual sales for the year. The Literary and Art Staffs had frequent brain storms, moments of grandeur, changes of mind and then settled down to their task. The Annual is a product of the Senior Class, but to some few seniors it has been a great part of their waking moments. It represents hard work, frayed nerves, but a whole whale of a lot of laughs, fun and good will!

Standing—Mr. Charles Regal, Business Advisor.
(Left to Right) S. Wilburn, O. Staples, G. Jones, L. Barger, E. Hatfield, Business Manager.

Joyce Hurley, Editor