

Victory Corps

Executive Council: Alvera Ruebusch, Herman Sallee, John Mohr, Miss Emilie Curry, Thelma Caudill, Janet Baker, Cecelia Sherrill, Joanne Wooley, Armenia Glaspie.

over into the home. This too, is within the realm of the organization which seeks to have every student an active member whether his war activity be part of the school program or whether it be carried on within the home or community. Herein lies the coordinating responsibility of the Corps. Many individuals have found in and through the Victory Corps an opportunity to do that which will help bring their fathers, brothers, and friends home sooner — and home to a better world.

The Victory Corps has recommended projects to homeroom groups. These have been successfully carried out and have often stimulated interest within the members which urged them to the achievement of additional goals. Activities have been suggested to various club groups. Genuine enthusiasm met these suggestions and they were carried to a successful conclusion. The Victory Corps has directed, when conditions seemed to warrant it, a number of activities which were more or less temporary and which at the time of their development could not feasibly be turned over to any particular group. These have been handled by volunteers from the membership of the Corps. Whenever appeals have been made by community agencies engaged in war-time activities, the Victory Corps has always heeded their call. It has met every appeal which has come to it to the best of its ability.

Assisting Dr. Peaslee, the director of the Victory Corps at Woodward High School, and Miss Curry, the faculty advisor, is an Executive Council of students chosen from the larger Student Wartime Council, which is composed of a representative from each home room. Miss Curry is assisted in an advisory capacity by Mrs. Nantz, Miss Schwartz, Miss Aiken, Mrs. Helmers, and Mr. Rusher.