

Calendar

September

- 7 — School started. Back to the old grind again for a year. Of course, we seniors don't mind so much, since we expect an easy life.
- 8 — Goody! We got our books. Isn't it wonderful to have homework to do once more? (Where is that "easy" life we seniors expected?)
- 9 — Found out that the band and team have already been practicing at Deer Creek for two weeks. And we're complaining after two days!
- 10 — Pigskin Preview. Saw our team in action for the first time. No, they didn't win either of our two games, but they and our band made a very good showing. Our majorettes and new drum major looked especially jaunty as they strutted around Carson Field in Nippert Stadium.
- 13 — G. S. W. got under way with the expert guidance of Miss Orr. Certain students were invited to attend detention, which began today. No, we were not among the lucky few.
- 17 — Night game with Lockland. Won? Well, no; but we had a jolly time improvising shelters against the drenching rain, newspapers being waw out front as favorites for tents and hats. Also, we caught glimpses of the fair at Carthage Fair Grounds on our way out there.
- 23 — Pep session. A chance to see our cheerleaders and team. Mr. Curtis introduced the "Fight Song" which went over in a big way. According to the coaching staff, athletic books will be $1.50. Turn in your used football book for basketball books. Seniors are notoriously absent-minded, so we'll probably lose ours.
- 27 — First senior meeting. We got information about class rings and pins and discovered that we must have our $8.00 or $8.50 when we place the order. Don't they trust us? We're for more and longer meetings.
- 29 — Senior girls in Janie Y-Teens modeled for underclassmen at the Y. W. C. A. "Babe" looked especially sharp in jeans, a long (down to her knees) wool plaid shirt, sox, and saddles. Her accessories consisted of broom straws placed in a smart manner all through her hair and over her costume.

October

- 1 — Makeup magic demonstrated in auditorium. Sharp looked very dashing as a gay-nineties blade and Levy looked distinguished as Robert E. Lee.
- 4 — Student Council began to assign duties to various committees.
- 7 — One down, eight to go (months of school, that is). Orders were taken for rings and pins. To think that we won't get them for eight whole weeks! Home and office report cards made out in homerooms by pupils. What portents of woe that white card holds!
- 9 — Janie Y-Teens girls took their fellows on a hayride. Although the night was cold and wet and the truck was crowded, everyone had fun.
- 12 — Bulldog representatives talked about new and bigger and better paper — subscriptions, 60c per year, single copies 6c. Poll taken by Bulldog staff to determine how much money the average student spends yearly. We didn't know quite how much money we let slip by us! An extra malt a day certainly adds up!
- 15 — New Bulldog came out. It was quite different from last year's, but whether better or not was the subject of many torrid debates.
