

Woodward girls don't have to go to Arthur Murray's or the Rosedale Dancing Academy to learn how to tap dance. Woodward has two classes in which the girls can work toward this goal. Here all the ninth, tenth, eleventh, and twelfth grade girls who are interested learn the basic fundamentals of dancing. The first of these two groups meets on Tuesday during the first period; the second, on Tuesday after school.

Most of the girls of the first bell class had to give up a study bell or a period of gym to be in this tap dancing class. The girls who come after school gave up some of their time which could be used for studying or doing something else.

The time these girls gave up was not wasted, however. Through the tireless efforts of Mrs. Edna Rehkamp, their capable faculty adviser, the girls work to accomplish a two-fold purpose, to learn to tap dance and to improve poise, posture, and self-confidence.

Special recognition goes to Doris Steel for her splendid piano accompaniment.
