

NOVEMBER 6—Woodward boys have rediscovered yo-yos, it seems. What has a yo-yo got that I haven't? Something drastic must be done to stop this yo-yo epidemic. You'd think Woodward was a kindergarten. Boys are the silly ones!

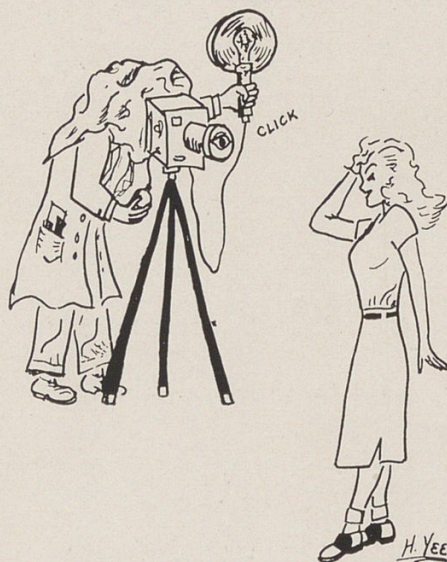

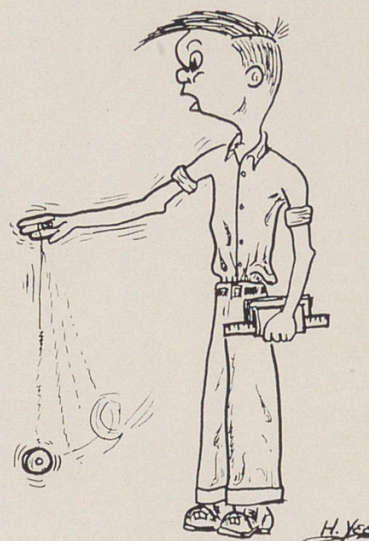

NOVEMBER 7—The gals at Woodward are really indebted to Dr. Peaslee. He outlawed yo-yos during school hours! At least we gals have a clear field from 8:30 to 5:00! Who said competition was the spice of life!!

NOVEMBER 12—Juniors are having their health exams now. Gee, I'm glad that part of my life is behind me, but I remember "stick out your tongue and say 'ah'." Lucky me, I'm the healthy type!

NOVEMBER 13—No school for me today. I was in the group that attended the Motorcade to see the proposed plans for the new highways. It was really interesting, and oh, these radar sandwiches—simply atomic! The Cincinnati of the Future will really be something.

NOVEMBER 14—Started taking Senior pictures today. All those scheduled for pictures today came to school in the neatest white blouses. And just about everybody had her hair up in pin curls. Gruesome! But they all wanted to look their best for their pictures. The boys looked pretty snappy too. Clothes do make the man! Open house was tonight. I guess Mom and Pop know the horrible truth now. I did my best to steer them away from you know who!

Mrs. Stenger and Miss Tvrznik are having a friendly feud over who is to have the great honor and privilege of holding off the stampede as the gals rush to lunch there at the third floor steps. The winner should wear a badge and a shock proof uniform!

NOVEMBER 17—Physical exams still going on in the gym so no classes today. Movies in the auditorium instead. Pretty nice. Gym isn't my favorite subject anyway. Believe me!

NOVEMBER 18—I had my picture taken today. I hope it flatters me. All you have to do is smile and 'watch the birdie'. It would be swell if they guaranteed results. Make mine Lana Turner!

NOVEMBER 19—Student Council Steering Committee was elected today. Imagine, only one ballot to each person, how could I win under such conditions!!! It would have been nice to be on the Executive Committee. If for no other reason, it would mean an extra picture in the Annual. Miss Curry wouldn't like that attitude!

Student Council is busy at work already. But what kind of things do they propose to do. Distribute Christmas cheer, push Red Cross donations, collect for the War Memorial. All important, I grant. But what would we really like to promote? We're just full of ideals. Our suggestions would be: escalators, up and down; pepsi cola in the water fountains; coffee and doughnuts every morning—just not for the underweight people; afternoon tea; no homework; more men teachers—handsome ones that is; more holidays; a longer vacation!!! I can dream, can't I???

NOVEMBER 20—Received my class ring today. Mine fits perfectly and it looks simply scrumptious. I shall wear it on my third finger left hand until I exchange it for something better!!

NOVEMBER 21—It was funny today to watch how the Seniors went around showing off their class rings. Worse than a group of newly engaged girls!! But I guess I was as bad as the rest.

NOVEMBER 25—Letter award assembly was held today. Guess I'm a corporal now, I got my second bar. A notice came around today asking if any students would be interested in bowling with a league. I would have signed up if Cincinnati had any good bowling alleys but every one I've been to had balls with holes in them, and pins that wouldn't fall down!!

Yes, I think I'll apply for a Mercantile Library card. I guess my scholarship will pass inspection. I must remember to turn my name in to Miss Long tomorrow.

NOVEMBER 26—There's to be a Scribblers' Club this year. I'm going to join. Inspiration do your stuff!!

NOVEMBER 27—I just realized that Christmas is coming, and me with no money. I wonder if I can make enough pot holders and house slippers to go around?
