

SADIE BENTON. A loyal Woodwardite, this girl, alive with school spirit. Hard to imagine Woodward's front hall without Sadie in a group of friends.

HOISE BIRKS. Works hard and plays hard. We expect him to become a top-grade football coach.

MARY ELLEN BOEHM. Probably the girl with the most original laugh in Woodward . . . it's irresistible.

MARTHA BONNER. A shy smile covering a warm personality . . . Sincere, fun-loving . . . a real addition to any crowd.

ROBERT BOWLING. Bob's the boy who can knock 'em dead with that curved ball of his. We hope he will make as many friends in the big world as he made here.

JUNE BRATTON. Looks smart . . . is smart. Finds time for a full program of activities . . . works miracles with a needle and thread.

COSTELLA BRITTON. Likes people, and they like her . . . enjoys the theater . . . hopes to be a secretary. She'd be a good one.

ANNA F. BROWN. Active in many groups . . . the kind of a student who keeps school activities going . . . knows how to work and how to play.

DRUSILLA BROWN. Petite but packed with energy . . . Dru sometimes reminds us of a pint-sized rocket.

JEWEL BROWN. Envied for the astonishing variety of her hairstyles and her flair for clothes . . . a dependable student, besides.

VIVIAN BROWN. Count on her for some good advice in a pleasant, gentle voice.

SYLVESTER BROUGHTON. Woodward's sports star. Invaluable every season to our football, basketball, and baseball teams. He just didn't have time for track.

BENJAMIN BRYANT. Mister President . . . a fine example of capability, diligence, and perseverance. A dignified presiding officer, a hard worker, and an effective speaker.

VILMA BRYANT. A busy Woodwardite . . . invaluable asset to the music department . . . types almost as fast as she talks.

ROGER BUGGE. He may be small, but we didn't have any trouble hearing those rapid-fire answers in class. Students come bigger at Woodward, but not better.

JOYCE BURKETT. Poised and competent . . . knows where she is going and how to get there.

EMILY BURT. Always smartly dressed . . . always informed about the latest style . . . and always ranking high in sports.

VIVIAN BUSCH. Often to be found in the center of a happy, laughing group.

GERALDINE BUTLER. For some of us, graduating in four years was a struggle . . . this smart gal did it in three. Too bad such nice people don't stay longer.

BETTY BUTTS. Has plenty of S-M-I-L-E and uses it generously.

CURTIS BYRD. Can hold his own with anybody in cooking. His ambition is to become a chef. We predict a great deal of success.
