

ANNIE RUTH HARRIS. Soft, expressive eyes set off her taste in dress . . . an industrious, capable worker.

GRACE HARRISON. Another of our aspiring journalists. Works hard, and is easy to look at while she's working.

MALVENNA HATTEN. A persuasive public speaker and a talented dancer. But perhaps what Malvenna does best is to use her bright eyes and impish smile to keep us guessing.

VERMELLE HAYES. A mastermind when it comes to arranging the various parts of a costume into a complete and attractive outfit.

LOU HEDGES. Pep and enthusiasm Lou has in generous amount. Add his broad smile and unerring taste in dress and you have a combination that is hard to beat.

LEONARD HERRING. A baseball enthusiast . . . valuable A-V-aider . . . Spider will be missed at Woodward.

PRISCILLA HICKS. Unassuming, reliable . . . her charming manner has made her many warm friends among her classmates.

BOBBY HILL. A ringing baritone voice that was outstanding in the choir. Bob is famous also for his Salutatory Hand Shakes.

DOLORES HILL. Sociable, busy, ready for fun without neglecting her studies.

SHIRLEY HILL. Proof once more that best things come in small packages. This little girl can be heard as well as seen.

JO ANN HODGEMAN. Who would mind gaining a little weight, as Jo Ann did, if she could gain so much popularity, as Jo Ann did.

GEORGIA HOLLAND. Fun to be with . . . a fine sense of humor. We have often wished there were more like her.

JAMES HOUSTON. Well known throughout the school as a hard and willing worker.

ELEANOR HOWARD. Little Eleanor has a willpower and energy that really gets things done.

CHARLES HUGHES. Fun-loving, happy Charley never loses sight of the importance of his studies.

MARY HUGHES. As capable as she looks. A conscientious student whom we have enjoyed knowing.

HILDA HURST. Personality plus . . . Hilda's job as cheerleader gave her a place way out in front, yelling for Old Woodward.

MARY IVORY. Her pleasant voice and cheerful manner made Mary a successful student of Public Speaking.

ROBERT JACKSON. Credit for the fine spirit of the WHS Football Team is due right here. Bob's dependability and sportsmanship were invaluable.

IDA JAMES. Friendly, thoughtful . . . works conscientiously in class and in activities . . . can always find time to enjoy life.
