

RUBY MANN. Don't let a few flashes of fiery temper scare you off. She's an earnest friend . . . fun to know.

VIVIAN MANNING. Charm and wit . . . leads the class in fashion . . . always up with the latest expressions.

LUCILLE MARPLE. A pleasant manner and warm friendliness make Lucy a real favorite.

EUGENE MARTIN. Makes friends quickly—and for keeps. His philosophy: Live while you're living.

JACK MASSEY. Not much mass, maybe, but an important member of the Class of 1952. Kept a critical and competent eye on the Annual.

JOYCE MATHES. In years to come, when Joyce is a famous tap dancer, we plan to brag about "we knew her when."

CYBELE MEADOWS. Sewing is a skill that this future secretary will always have in her nimble fingers.

SHIRLEY MEEKER. Collecting popular records is her favorite pastime. Her serious ambition is to become an expert comptometer operator.

EVELYN MEYER. Her ambition is to be a really successful housewife. She beats us all at crocheting.

LAWRENCE MYERS. His pleasant disposition and ready smile make him a most satisfactory friend and a credit to Woodward.

MARLENE MYERS. Flip is the kind of girl everybody sums up as "cute." Ready for fun. Ambition? At present, it's Joe.

ROBERT MILES. An energetic fellow who seems to be everywhere at once.

ANNIE MILLER. Annie has an important requirement for success in any field—she sticks with a job until it's finished.

BARBARA MILLER. Efficient and capable in the classroom and on the playfield. A noteworthy student and a good hockey player.

HAROLD MILLER. If friends were counted, his total would be huge. He's always courteous and ready to help.

English IV: "Alas, poor Yorick!"
