

"I shall take you on the wings of fantasy on a trip hither and yon and we shall see what the future holds for you and your fellow graduates of Woodward High School. We're in downtown Cincinnati now. There's your alma mater. Why, some of your former classmates are teachers there—JOE IRELAND, still as handsome as ever, is football coach; DOROTHY STALLINGS and CAROLYN CHESHER are history teachers and FLORENCE OEHLER teaches music.

Continuing into town, let's check on the directory of this large modern office building. It will give us a wealth of information. This one seems to house professional people—JOHN JOHNSON, doctor; STANTON GARLAND, lawyer; HOWARD and HELEN BELLAMAH, psychiatrists; WILLIAM PARKER, attorney-at-law; DEMUS SCHOOLEY, dentist (VIRGINIA KELLER believes her dentist is her best friend); PATRICIA KREISLE, doctor (she has FRANCIS BRUMMET as her nurse); CHESTER WELLS, doctor; WILLIAM CHANDLER, lawyer; BARBARA FUGATE, surgeon; and HERBERT HARRIS, attorney-at-law.

This building seems to be given over to business men. There's the office of LLOYD FOGEL and JOHN GAY. They're accountants now. What a charming secretary, CAROLYN MAZZEI, and stenographers DELORES STEIN, BERNICE SULLIVAN, and DOROTHY STEINER. GEORGE JACKS, now a top man in the advertising field, employs a number of Woodward graduates—ELAINE ERHARDT, WILFRED SALES, AMERICO CARUSONE, IMOGENE BERNARD, and JOHN PROPHETER, artists; EMMA LOU McKAREM and EDWARD GESSNER, bookkeepers; DELORES COMBS, HELEN OENBRINK, THERESA MARTINO, and KATHLEEN HUEY, secretaries. Look how efficiently FRANCIS NOPPERT operates her comptometer. GENE KESTLER is a real estate broker. CHARLES GREEN has a business of his own and has in his employ EVA MATTHEWS, GEORGIA BROWN, MYRTLE EVANS, MAUDE LEWIS, and ERNESTINE WASHINGTON. Draftsmen CHARLES LEWIS and DAVID ALLEN have their offices here; also MATTHEW GRUBER, mechanical engineer; and JOHN TEWART, consulting engineer. DORIS KUHN, the feminine version of Walter Winchell, collects her juicy tidbits in an office on the uppermost floor.

There on the corner is the pharmacy of WALTER FENDERSON, JACK EDWARDS, ERNEST HUNTER, and JOHN BLANKS. Their store is very fine and they're all registered pharmacists. Over there is an exclusive dress shop owned by BERNICE MILLER. She designs most of the clothes she offers to an exclusive clientele. Her designs are executed by expert seamstresses, many of
