
 Seniors Suzi Hamilton, Britt Cagnole, and Hava Tillipman browse in the gift shop at the Cincinnati Zoo. The ape, which they are holding a stuffed replica of, was one of the main reasons for visiting.

Senior Dimple Shah does some hands on learning at Union Terminal. One of the many exhibits the Anthropology class saw was "Cincinnati Goes to War".

 Seniors Ali McLennan and Britt Cagnole smile as they withstand the rain at the Cincinnati Zoo and Botanical Gardens. Although the weather was not ideal, it didn't stop them from learning as they roamed the grounds.

Mr. Boughton and Mrs. Lambert watch a member of the ape family, as it watches them back. One of the things taught in Anthropology is the evolution of man from apes.
