

Abbie Tepe, 12, sprints past the defense. Tepe knocked people off while they were trying to tackle her. She was too fast, too furious.

Melanie McLaughlin, 11, yanks off senior Julie Sauer's flag. Even though Sauer did not have the ball yet, McLaughlin was ready for any further action. Keeping on your toes and anticipating the play was critical.

Sarah Deger, 12, tries to pull off junior Ali Shewmon's flag. Kendall O'Keefe, 11, tries to block the defense in order to allow Shewmon to gain a first down. It was vital that every player played to their highest ability.

Mackenzie Stevens, 11, hikes the ball to the quarterback. Stevens was a huge component to the offensive line. Her aggressive nature and enthusiastic personality was substantial to the junior squad.

q&a Abbie Tepe, 12

q) What position did you play?

a) Wide Receiver.

q) What was your fondest moment?

a) When Zach [Star, 12] tackled Kendall [O'Keefe, 11] and when someone ripped my shorts. That was funny.

q) How do you feel about the overall situation?

a) I am just glad we had fun and went undefeated!

1. Shelli Coppoolse, 12, screams for her teammates. Advice from the sidelines was very helpful for the girls. It always got hectic on the field; therefore, some tips were nice when given to the players. 2. Melanie McLaughlin, 11, runs the ball down the sideline. Running the ball was more common than throwing the ball for the juniors. This was the way they gained their highest yardage. 3. Megan Johnson, 12, cheers for the seniors. Team spirit was always a must. Without the support of teammates it was hard to focus. This was one thing the seniors definitely did not lack.
