The JV Aviators fought a hard season bringing their final record to 2-8. With close games against Oak Hills, Middletown, Loveland, the team is full of potential. Coming off a year with a shortened season, this team had a lot working against them; however, they powered through and created stronger bonds because of it. Jared Turner, 11, said, "This season is definitely an improvement of last season, not having to deal with COVID and winning more games."

They will be able to continue utilizing their talents going forward whether they move onto Varsity next year or continue to be leaders on the JV team. For current JV Quarterback Seth Truter, 10, this year's team chemistry has allowed them to "read each other on the field." He said he needs to "predict what [his] teammates are going to do," to play more efficiently and work together towards victory.

Across the Sycamore football program, a common phrase for the players is "What's Important Now?" More than a guiding questions to center the boys before a game, the first letters spell out an important word. What's Important Now? WIN!
