

welcome to the jungle

marching band

After two years of "City Lights," Sycamore's band of adventurers descended upon an entirely new jungle this year. "Into the Jungle" includes three movements, a pre-show and percussion feature. "It's our first year back from Covid, and it's been really cool to have a brand new big show this year. Our music has been a lot harder which I love...it's been so great to have a higher difficulty of music." In addition to the more complex composition, the show incorporates props built by parent volunteers. "...We haven't had props since my freshman year, and they're such a nice visual element," says Elliana Jobe, 12. The storyline is further incorporated by vocals in-between the movements. "It's also really sick that there's a story line with vocals that add to the whole experience of the show," says Minjee Kim, 11.

