

Dear Fellow Students:

If you have never worked on a yearbook, you cannot begin to imagine all the hard work and long hours it takes to produce the memories of a year gone by. The goal of the Log Staff was to illustrate the school year in such a manner that you, the student, may remember the people, places, and things were so vital at Sycamore High School in 1986-87.

Heading the project was no easy task, but my worries and work-load were eased due to the extraordinary help of a few special staff members. It is at this time I would like to credit Lawrence Wang, Cindy Zadikoff, Mindy Johnson, Shilpa Sangvai, Mike Gabor, and Garrett Estep for making the 1987 LOG a success. It is these students, along with others, who spent endless hours drawing layouts, cropping pictures, and typing copy.

As far as the book goes: Take this book and relive the past, for the future is now, and today won't last. Turn the pages and remember a face, look up a name and recall the place. This isn't just a yearbook; it's a great big mirror book, enabling us all to reflect upon special people and events. Treasure it always.
