

See How They Run

In the dead of winter, Sycamore High School's Theater Arts Group put on a British comedy, which was able to veil thoughts of winter with the warmth of good humor. See How They Run had a balanced cast which included a homogenous mixture of both old and new actors and actresses. The outcome of long hours of rehearsal and practice was highly entertaining event which will certainly be quite memorable for both the cast and the audience. The comedy, with its unique style of slapstick satire, went well with the audience. By the end of the night there was not a single soul who had not chuckled or grinned at least once. Just when the winter had just about drained the spirit of most students, the SSTAG winter production came through with the right dose of mirth and sarcasm. It was a welcomed respite for all.
