

National Honor Society

This year's National Honor Society induction heralded the membership of 26 new members into NHS. Characteristically, this year's new individuals maintained the high elements of scholarship, leadership, service, and character which are the basic tenets of NHS. Besides the new inductees, Mr. Paul Haverkos, physics teacher extraordinaire, was brought into the ranks of NHS as a faculty member. After an exuberant and moving quartet of speeches given by the NHS officers, the members and their families moved to the reception. Thus, NHS has maintained another year.
