The 1985-86 Freshman Boys' Basketball Team spent the season in developing the budding talents of each individual. Finishing the season with a record of 7 wins and 7 losses, the team did not finish as well as they would have liked, but they certainly did a fine job in light of the increased competition found in the new league. One of the highlights of the season was the double-overtime win that the Aviators had over Moeller. In terms of individual accomplishments, the team was led by Chris Schneider and Steve Rahe, who along with Tim Cutter, Scott Ross, and Jason Housh, provided both offensive output and defensive tenacity.
