

A photograph of a brick building with a sidewalk and trees in the foreground. The building is made of light-colored bricks and has a flat roof. There are some trees and bushes in front of the building. The sky is overcast.

As the school year comes to an end, so does our job as editors. Putting together a yearbook is more than cropping pictures, drawing layouts, and writing copy. Our goal was to capture the essence of the senior year for the class of 1986 and the underclassmen. We hope we have illustrated the interaction between the classes, students, and faculty that make this year unique. We would like to thank all members of the staff who contributed their time and hard work. Those who deserve special thanks for their dedication are Mark Everson, Michael Gabor, Patti Plagens, Ranju Sangvai, and William Wang.

co-editors
Amy Hysse and Debbie Gabor