

One last moment of glory

The sad part about leaving

By: Caitlin Bokulic

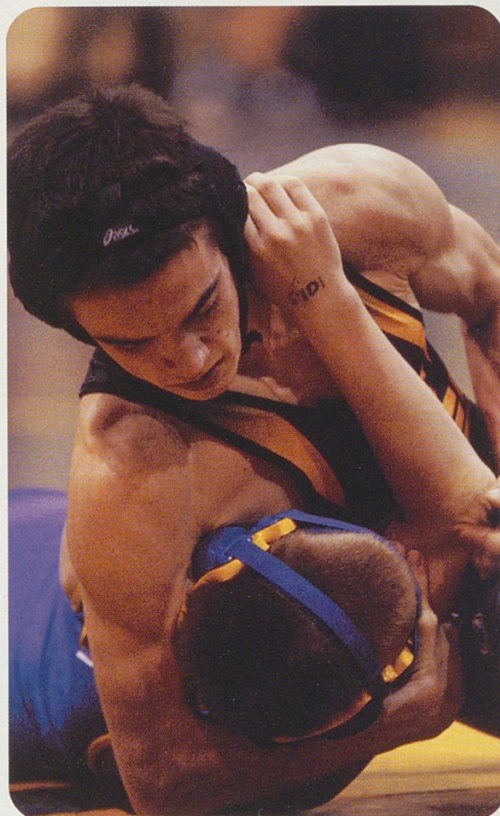

For many people their lives at school have revolved around playing one or more sports. So what happens after the last goal is scored, the last puck is shot and the last ace is made? That is the question that many of them are facing because they will not be playing a varsity sport while they are in college.

"I'm going to miss going to practice and being a part of a team," said Francisco Morillo-Delerme.

Even though they will not be playing a college level varsity sport they still have plenty of options if they want to continue to play a sport. Every college across the nation lets students have the chance to participate in athletics through club and intramural sports.

"I'm not going to be running next year in college but I'm going to join the equestrian club next year at Penn State," said Jennifer Steinhardt.

Even though at the end of the season they might not receive their varsity letter for playing in a sport, they can be guaranteed to be having a lot more fun. College is full of new experiences and whether you play a club or intramural sport or not, you are sure to have a blast.

Pinning his opponent down, Zach Tawney, gets another win for the season. He played three sports (football, wrestling and track) every year he was at Sycamore. Tawney will be attending the University of Tennessee next year.
