Coach Melnick instructs his team on how to defeat the opponent. The players had to adjust to plays, other teams, as well as players. In the end, the team came out with a win!

Where they go one, they go all

From Canton to Walnut Hills

By: Carly Conlon

The girl's volleyball season started out with a short trip to Canton and ended in a challenging match against Walnut Hills.

"It's always eventful at Canton. Whether it's our scary stories, Ryan's Buffet, grilling out, or the euchre tournament, it's always marvelous," said Sarah McGrath, 11.

Upon returning from Canton, the ladies painted stools, went to team dinners, and hung out on the weekends. This provided even more bonding. From the very beginning, every player was dedicated to improving her skills and leading the team to victory. During practices they worked hard and had a good time.

"Even though I was unable to play really this season, I was there for the team. They worked really hard and had high goals for themselves. Although they were unable to meet some of them, I am sure that they will next year," said Brittani Gray, 12.

Gray received a 'full ride' scholarship to Northwestern University.

Before matches the girls would get ready physically by jogging and stretching and doing a drill called 'pepper.' The team would run out onto the court and fans would cheer for them. Mentally, the ladies wrote down goals in a binder and hit their stools and said 'win' as a team. One of the matches had a 'Hawaiian Night' theme. This got more fans to come out and support the team.

"I love the girls. We all worked really hard and tried new things throughout the season. No matter if we were winning or loosing we always played our best," said Abbey Reedy, 10.

This team was so connected to each other. They would have high and low points together as a team. The friendship and strength of this team showed on and off the court. Throughout the season, the girls were devoted to the team. Right to the end, the girls worked together to achieve great things.

Every hit returns with a perfect pass from Grace Naugle, 11. Naugle played a critical role for the team. "We had a fabulous time on the volleyball court this year. From the pasta parties, games played to the team bonding, everything was so much fun," said Naugle.

Working hard every play whether it was front or back row. Emily Beech, 11, always put forth her best effort. "We really worked hard throughout the season and it payed off when we played Loveland and beat them," said Beech.
