

April fools day after day

"I once put sugar in my sister's gas tank. It turned out that later that day her car broke down."

-Kenny Heile, 9

Very sneaky! Megan Miraglia, 10, pulls a chair out from underneath a friend of hers, Dennis Jiang, 10. According to Miraglia, this is a habit of hers.

Tricking and teasing people is not only for Halloween and April Fools Day. Many people have a tendency to play practical jokes on their friends or family members whenever the opportunity comes around.

"My friend and I once put anonymous quotes in one of our other friend's mailboxes. She had no idea who she was receiving them from," said Meredith Juergens, 11.

Some people can take the jokes that are played on them very seriously.

"My best friend told me that he was moving to Boston. The reason I believed it is because he got all of my other friends involved in the joke also," said Kimberly Thompson, 11.

Practical jokes can really be taken two different ways. Some people look at them to be rude, and hurtful, while others find them to be funny and harmless.

"I think when people play practical jokes on their friends it is really funny, as long as it is not too harmful. If they do something to you, then you have the right to get back at them and you should get them back 100 times better," said Carly Gilbert, 9.

By Stacey Lowenstein

Thomas Ellsworth
Christina Emery
Tabatha Essary
Lanham Esterkamp
Brandy Everett
Edward Everett
Dana Fahlbusch

Jillian Fairhead
Robert Faulkner
Helen Finkel
Michael Finkel
Robert Firor
Jamie Fishman
Andrew Flint

Daniel Fluker
Laura Forcade
Megan Frank
Wesley Frank
Marc Fried
Eric Friedstrom
Anastasia Fryer

Elizabeth Gamble
Sarah Ganson
Emily Gardner
Julia Gardner
Robert Garfield
Kathleen Gearin
Alexander Gering