

1. Above and beyond the call of duty. Mrs. Kathy Stacy helps a student during the first Diversity Day. Stacy worked hard to make sure that Diversity Day was perfect. 2. Hours of work. Mrs. Melissa Wolfe-Izworski helps judges with their assignments and ballots before they judge the final round of debates. 3. Working towards a gold. Mrs. Susan Odell works with two students in the DIME Club on their experiment to take to the John Glen Center in Cleveland, Ohio to test their ideas. 4. Help at its best. Mr. Perry Denehy works all day long teaching sports medicine classes and wrapping ankles. After school he travels with sport teams to games in case of an injury. 5. Staring in amazement. Mrs. Heike Schade explores The Taste of Sycamore in the commons. Schade helps set up The Taste of Sycamore which was put on during Diversity Day in February. 6. Improving writing skills. Mrs. Liz Gonda works daily in the Writing Center helping students with grammatical errors or any other English concern. 7. Ready to teach. Mrs. Diane Jennings grades papers for her British Literature classes. Jennings stays very organized throughout the day even with three different preparations.

If Ms. Courtney Gelter decided not to be a teacher, what would she want to be?

- a. Singer
- b. Journalist
- c. Secretary
- d. Doctor

answer: b - "For a magazine or newspaper"

GOING BEYOND THE LIMITS: TEACHERS AFTER HOURS

Mills

Quote to Students:

"Get involved -
O
so much!"