With the approach of Commencement we are indeed proud and happy that we are to be Doctors of Medicine. We feel that we have chosen and have made an effort to fit ourselves to serve in a profession which has for its prime object the service it can render humanity. In choosing this profession we have assumed an obligation to conduct ourselves in accordance with its ideals.

With these thoughts in view we are now about to take our leave, and departing we wish to render thanks to the City of Cincinnati, to the Patrons of our University and of our Medical College, and to our teachers, whom we have come to respect and to so highly esteem during our years of training here. It is our most sincere wish that we may, in some measure, justify the efforts of these, our benefactors.
